

OWL LAFFS

—BY— A WISE OWL

Do you know, the kids are door-bell ringing already and it's two weeks till Halloween? I wouldn't mind so much, but going forty-five steps from the third floor to the front door a couple times a night, to find nobody there, makes these old bones creak. It's even later than I think.

"Mill" Mater went to the bank to have two fifty dollar checks cashed. When the teller asked her how she wanted the cash, Mill replied: "Two twenty-fives and a fifty." The teller smothered a grin and then asked Mill what she said. It wasn't until she repeated it that she realized there is no such green-backs as 25's.

If you wonder how the little woman spends her day, just stay home with a cold and listen.

A Landisville lass went away to school and left Mortimer, her small town sweetheart, with a promise that she would write often. They came college life. It was books, boys, study, boys, football, boys, classes, boys, study, boys.

Finally she found time to write Mortimer a postcard: "What's the matter with you, Mortimer? You're so hard to remember."

A recent survey shows that fewer men are arrested for bigamy every year. But that does not surprise me. Who can afford to keep two wives, I ask you.

I'll let you guess who this was. One of our sweet little blondes was drinking a coke at Sloan's. She had two straws in the glass but was only drinking out of one. Finally Gary asked: "Why don't you use the other straw?" She explained: "This one isn't empty yet."

They tell me that sophistication is the art of pretending the unexpected is what you anticipated.

Advice is like snow — we always get it when we don't need it.

The story of an escaped lunatic occupied several columns of the evening paper and the small son of the family read every word avidly. Turning to his father after he had concluded the story, he asked: "Daddy, how do they catch lunatics?" The father, who had been busily writing out checks for the monthly bills, replied: "Oh, they use funny little hats, fur coats, perfume, jewelry, forty dollar pocket-books and lots of other little things like that." — He ducked just in time to miss a platter as it came sailing out of the kitchen which left Junior quite confused.

If you were frightened by what you thought was a mad man several weeks ago, just relax! It was only Mahlon Foreman, who made a mistake and used shaving cream instead of toothpaste to brush his teeth.

Here's a conversation for you—"Do you have any insurance?" "Yes." "Accident?" "No, I let the salesman talk me into it."

Hen's gonna enter his girl friend in an art exhibit. I told him he couldn't enter a person in an art exhibit, but he insists he can enter his girl, cause she's pretty as a picture and set in a beautiful frame.

One of our English war brides told us this amusing story —

A kind hearted English vicar one day observed an old woman laboriously pushing a perambulator up a steep hill. He offered his assistance and when they reached the top of the hill said, in answer to her thanks: "Oh, it's nothing at all. I was delighted to do it. But as a reward may I kiss the baby?" "Baby," scouted the old lady. "Lor' bless you sir, it aint no baby. It's the old man's beer."
