

OWL LAFFS

A WISE OWL

I sure don't think anything's funny today. Neither would you if you couldn't go deer hunting. There's just nothing like it. A big, old log stove, a deck of cards and refreshing beverage. Yessir, there's just nothin' like deer hunting.

Stopped at a shop on South St. in Philly, only to find the door locked and on it a sign that read: NOTICE: The partnership between Me and Mose is hereby dissolved. Those who owe the firm please settle with me, and those the firm owes please settle with Mose.

This "survival of the fittest" that everybody's always talking about is going to make some guy awful lonesome some day.

Here's a new angle. When the girl asks: "Why did you turn off the lights?" He replied: "I wanted to see if my pipe was lit." — — — Do you suppose she believed him?

Here's a few words that sums things up nicely: Before marriage, he talks and she listens; during the honeymoon, she talks and he listens. Later on, they both talk and the neighbors listen.

Met a friend of mine in the clothing business who is troubled with insomnia. He told me his partner suggested he count sheep to encourage sleep. But that he must count hundreds not just a few. "And did it work?" I asked. "No," answered the sufferer. "I counted thousands, thousands and thousands. Then I sheared them, combed the wool, spun it into cloth. The cloth I made into suits, took them to the wholesalers — sold them and lost $20.00 apiece on each one. How can I sleep under the circumstances?" — — — He's really got a problem.

A Fairview St. man says he does not tell his wife everything, because what she doesn't know won't hurt him.

Woman's tuition — A suspicion that turned out to be true. Nag — A woman with no horse sense.

Here's a little fairy tale for you. An Indian worried about a growth on his finger and went to have it removed. The doctor agreed to do it for twenty-five dollars. Ugh, too much, grunted the Indian. Another doctor agreed to do it for ten dollars. "Ugh, too much," snarled the Indian. Finally he went home, laid the finger on a stump, chopped at it with his tomahawk, looked at the finger and said, Ugh, too much. — — — End.

That faint suggestion of snow we had Tuesday morning reminded me of the old fashioned sleigh rides we used to have. I remember one in particular when everybody was having a wonderful time but one girl, who just sat there and sighed, real deeply. After a while one of the handsome males asked her: "What's the matter?" She replied: "Nobody loves me and my hands are cold." And then real softly he said to her. "Oh, that's nonsense, your mother loves you, and you can sit on your hands." — — Nice guy!

SCHOOL MERGER IN EAST DONEGAL IS APPROVED

At a meeting last week in East Donegal Twp. High School, members of the Mount Joy, East Donegal and Marietta boards of education approved a final draft of the proposed articles of agreement on consolidation of the areas. Before signing, however, members authorized the Buchart Engineering Company, of York, to prepare a temporary estimate of cost. The members also will study methods of financing so that the residents of the area may understand fully what is involved before articles of agreement are signed. The December meeting will be held in Marietta.

Donegal Airport News

Miracles do happen it seems. The individual hanger which houses the new Piper Pacer was torn loose from the foundation and lifted away from the airplane. The amazing thing about it is that the plane was not even scratched.

We make several flights to Florida each winter. This winter we expect to make one of the trips coincide with the Miami Air Show on January 6-7. The show this time will be held largely for the private pilot. The Florida Air Pilots Association are sponsoring the affair.

"Our objective" declares Jess Bristow, PAPA president, will be to demonstrate the utility of non-airline civil aviation, including agricultural, industrial executive and personal flying.

A series of stock plane racers will be open to all sportsmen pilots. Rodney Jocelyn has promised to be on hand to defend his national aerobatics championship.

Early reports indicate that as many as 300 pilots may take part in the annual Miami-Havana Air Cruise, held in connection with the above events. Last year 178 planes joined the flight.

News bits—Civil Air Patrol organization is rolling along. Local pilots have been out on observation flights over the flooded areas up the river, and west of here where the snow is deep. Claire Sharpe was night flying last week. More night flights are scheduled for this week.

Allentown, Philadelphia, Harrisburg and the fine new Friendship International airport at Baltimore, are the destinations on these night familiarization flights. Pilot (student) Nissley of Nissley's Natural Gas Inc. was a visitor last week.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

We will in to-day's seminar tackle the subject of backward nations. If I was modern enough or balmy enough or was attached to some Bureau or public payroll and ranging up and down and across the land lecturing, I would call my gabfest with you today, a workshop. But not being on such a payroll for trying to put over a sale, I will just stick to the truth—call it a gabfest.

Now—backward nations. My desire is to find the person who is so all-wise as to say this nation or that nation is backward. We, in this fair land like baseball, horse races, bacon and eggs, and eat with a knife and fork. We do not go in much for bull-fights, straight vodka, rice and raw fish, chop sticks. Now, I query you. Who is so superior as to say bacon and eggs out-class rice and fish or vice versa. Or which is most backward, the knife and fork nation or chop stick nation.

No person amounting to a whoop—having self-respect, pride—has any love for any guy calling him backward, even if there is a hand-out involved. This Govt. of ours posing as the all-wise, and calling others backward—dishing out lavish aid, promiscuous—will lose more friends than it will make.

Uncle Simple, not Uncle Samuel, they will know us as in other lands, if we don't get over our great I am attitude.

Yours with the low down,
JIMMY
