EDITORIAL

Up to now we have not received one letter from any person in this locality, vacationing in Florida, telling us about the perfectly wonderful weather.

A Senate subcommittee Monday openly accused the United Nations of wasting money. The group undertook 723 special projects during last year. That is not the only waste we have here in these good old United States.

By an item elsewhere in these columns it may be seen that the Federal Government, after making not only a fizzle but quite an expense out of buying potatoes, wheat, eggs and what not, will now start buying Lancaster Co. tobacco thru our County Co-op.

What we are anxious to know is just when will Uncle Sam start helping the publishers.

The poultry processing industry has found a cure for its biggest headache—feathers. An Agricultural Department laboratory has proven that by applying a chemical, the feathers are easily converted into a valuable fertilizer for use on the farm.

Since the age of man poultry droppings were a valuable fertilizer but who ever realized that feathers could be successfully used for the same purpose?

The members of the Fire Company out at Mastersville certainly have the proper community spirit. Soon as the weather permits, they will complete their fire house, and we feel free in saying it will be the cheapest yet very substantial building to be found anywhere.

And this will be a reversal of the usual trend of doing things. The ground was donated, all the labor likewise. Usually on public enterprises many see how much they can get out of it but not so here.

Would that more of that same spirit prevailed in our community.

OUR WINGED FRIENDS

Much is said of assistance to the underprivileged people. Much can be said for the same for birds. Snow, blanketing the source of seeds for birds, puts the feathered creatures on their own, or on you. Your thoughtfulness will tide them over the tough times. Fat, grains, grit, scattered on the snow, will save many bird lives. We who sit comfortably in our homes, eat our daily meals, complaining about the severity of winter, should consider that the weather poses a problem of survival for birds, and care enough to provide for them.

Columbia has had auto parking trouble lately. A lot of courtesy tags were printed and on every car illegally parked, the police put a card, telling the motorist of his or her mistake, at the same time thanking the car driver. It reduced the violations seventy-five percent, since the plan was inaugurated.

The borough authorities are to be congratulated for the gentlemanly manner they chose in correcting the situation.

That same attitude applied by other towns would pay big dividends among motorists. After all, there are comparatively few motorists who will ignore a courteous request and these can be dealt with by law.

HEAVE AND HOE, BROTHER

It wasn't so long ago when home-owners, renters, set out to answer the call for victory gardens. More than 20 million of such gardens served to ease the strain on the commercial production of fruits & vegetables, during World War II. With the harvest for daily use, for canning, the victory gardeners helped to feed Americans while Americans helped to feed the world.

After a recent meeting of representatives of garden clubs, seed dealers, publishers of garden club magazines, educational institutions and vegetable growers, there is a program planned to again promote such gardens, to be called by the name of Liberty Gardens. Not much salesmanship will be needed to get the family to consider the production of peas, beans, corn, tomatoes, lettuce and leeks, in the cause of liberty. We will willingly hone our hoes.

WHAT NEXT?

Property damage claims of $1,288,333 have been filed against New York's artificial rain makers; a New Jersey firm was indicted for fraud in army meat; half a dozen star basketball players admit to throwing games; postal clerks in Boston got away with several million dollars; a Holstein cow gave birth to four male calves within twenty minutes. Now we are all anxious to know What Next.

ONE MINUTE DAILY

How many people in Tampa, Fla. will pause each day at noontime, for a minute of silent prayer? There will be many we hope. Suggested by the ministers of Tampa, the act of faith in a Divine Providence, was proclaimed by the mayor as follows:

"That for one minute the church bells of our city shall ring and while ringing I do call upon every person to stop wherever they are and whatever they may be doing, on the street, in the store, in the office, at home or elsewhere, and offer a silent prayer to Almighty God to guide us and defend us in the establishment and maintenance of justice, righteousness, freedom and peace throughout the earth."

Such a thought for Tampanians could spread with such force thru-out the world that for one minute every day the church bells of the universe might toll the prayer for peace. As we ask for guidance, we express our faith in the spiritual, for the temporal have not solved humanity's troubles.

FOOD AS A WEAPON

As we approach Brotherhood Week, we might reflect on an issue before this country today, in its Congress, that may decide whether brotherhood is being given just lip-service in the United States. It has been an American policy to barter with starving people promising aid only if certain political grants are made to us. There has been displeasure over India's mediation in Korean, over India's so-called appeasement policy regarding Communist China. So when the Indian Government asks for 2,000,000 tons of grain to relieve famine conditions, a committee in our Senate sidetracks the request of India. If the U. S. uses hunger as a weapon to compel a government to conform to her politics, then the U. S. is not going to rate very high in world opinion, nor probably very high here at home. To put aside the bill to send grain to India, to deny her our surplus on the grounds of a difference of opinion by India's leaders, is surely playing into the hands of Russia. We are for peace, for the brotherhood of man, are interpreters of democracy. Loyalty to our principles should place us above penalizing thousands because of one, though that one is their Prime Minister. Help should be given without political strings being attached. The American people have been justly named humanitarian and charitable. These are the qualifications for brotherhood. You do not barter and trade with them.

in the county will compete for honors in Basketball, Volleyball, and Table Tennis. The event will take place at West Lampeter on March 21. Harold reported that he had been elected by the County Chapter to represent that group at Penn State during June. Kenneth Kreider, also from East Donegal, was elected as an alternate.

At the next meeting March 8, twelve freshmen will receive their chapter farmer degrees. They are: John Garber, Jerry Mumma, Jay Mumma, Robert Eckman, Clyde Kemmerly, John Lehman, Jacob Shenk, Thomas Schatz, Jay Ginder, Martin Heisey, Blaine Kauffman and Harold Stauffer.

The group passed a resolution to have a Father-Son banquet some time in April. Committees have not as yet been appointed.

The Government has ordered all manufacturers to discontinue making white wall auto tires.

SHORT STORY

Little Boy Next Door

By Papinto J. Knowles

NEW PEOPLE were moving in the old house across the fence, and Molly went about her sewing near the window complacent with the certainty that the couple with the ten-year-old boy with whom she'd talked just the other day were not the folks moving in today.

Molly Turner had never liked children, and through all these twenty-five years she had been fortunate that none had moved next door. She felt in a way that telling prospective tenants with children the bad features about the old house had spared her an association she couldn't have endured. There hadn't been anything wrong in speaking the truth.

Molly put her sewing on a table, got up from her chair with difficulty and hobbled over to the coal stove to shake it down and put in a scuttle of coal. She had told the woman the truth about the house being drafty and needing repair, and about Frank Overton being so tight he'd never do anything about it.

She straightened and turned toward the window, and that was when she saw him: Ronnie, the ten-year-old boy belonging to the woman she'd talked to the other day. He was standing against the fence looking toward her house. Planning up his conquests of devilry, she thought, and she groaned in sick disappointment.

She hobbled back to her chair. So they had taken the house after all! Well—somehow she had to keep the brat out of her yard. There were her flowers in the spring and summer. He'd rummage in her sheds and break up things.

She glanced out of the window, and saw Ronnie climbing the fence. She pulled herself out of the chair and waddled hastily to the door. "Here, here," she called to the child. "Get back in your own yard."

Ronnie looked at her a second then climbed back over the fence. "I'll get your coal in," he said. Molly wouldn't look at him. "I don't need you to get my coal in," she said. "Get back in your own yard. Go on, now!"

It was the way Molly looked that caused the kid to scamper down the walk and climb over the fence as if she had actually shot at his feet. The unpleasant incident didn't keep Ronnie away. Every day Molly had to chase him out of her yard. Every day she vowed she'd skin him alive. What kind of mother did Ronnie have that she allowed him to pester a crippled old woman like her!

But one night a blizzard came, and the town of Hanover was covered with ice. Molly just had one bucket of coal by her stove, and she dared not venture out on the ice to get more. She used the coal sparingly, and when she got down

Molly thought she had Ronnie settled, but the next afternoon there he was at her door. To the last shovelful, a lost, desperate kind of feeling went over her. What would she do?

Late that afternoon a knock sounded on her door, and when she opened it, Ronnie smiled up at her uncertainly.

"I'll get your coal in, Miss Turner," he said. "It's slick, 'n you might fall..."

Molly couldn't speak for a moment. She felt almost huddle with shame and gratitude that he had come. "Well, I—well, that would be sweet of you," she said finally, and for the first time in all these twenty-five years of not wanting children next door, she saw the injustice of her prejudice toward them. What queer quirk in her mind had blinded her to the happiness a child could bring her?

Maybe it was because she had never looked at one—not as she was looking now at Ronnie and seeing the clear innocence of his eyes. A smile broke across her old face. "Thank you, Ronnie," she said. Strange, how good she felt saying it. The feeling was beautiful—one that she had waited much too long to experience.
