

About Pigeons

ject as a last ditch effort to get rid of the birds which have been roosting in the clock tower of the town hall for many years.

They soaked a lot of grain in Scotch whiskey. The pigeons gobbled it up and went reeling. They couldn't fly successfully so they went aground and it was not difficult to gather them up.

Our greatest difficulty would be the cost of the Scotch liquor but then the sale of the birds should reimburse.
In a later American Press dispatch from Leven, Scotland, it was reported that the pigeons gobbled up the grain soaked in Scotch whiskey and soared drunkenly back to their rooftops and tereered there until they sobered up.

Guess we must try some other remedy.
