International Show Opens November 25

Cattle Class Prizes Largest Ever Offered

The 51st International Live Stock Exposition will be held this year in the International Amphitheatre at the Chicago stock yards from November 25 through December 2.

Increased prize money for the show should help to encourage the exhibition of top livestock from both the United States and Canada, exhibition officials reported.

Prizes for all cattle classes will be $61,370, the largest total ever offered.

Farm Topics

An international grand champion steer is shown above with owners, Cleo Yoder of Iowa, Henry W. Marshall, exposition chairman, and Dr. A. D. Weber who is slated to judge steers again this year.

Many prize increases made in other breeds to mark the occasion of the golden jubilee show of 1949 are retained this year.

Dr. A. D. Weber, of Kansas State college, will judge the steers again this year. He is the only American to judge these classes since the exposition departed from the custom of having foreign judges two years ago.

Other features in connection with the international that have been familiar in the years since 1900 include the grain and hay show, recognized as the world's largest competitive showing of farm crops.

Farm Expenses Increased Five Fold in Past Decade

Farm expenses have increased almost five-fold over the past decade and not many farmers would care to return to the "good old days" of low expenses—if they had to accept the level of income that accompanied them.

This increase in cost of farm operation has been accompanied by some phenomenal changes in the composition of expenses. Machinery expense made up only 14 per cent of the total in 1935-39 while in 1947-49 it accounted for 21 per cent. Also, farmers are spending proportionately more for seed, fertilizer and other expenses than they spent 15 years ago.

These changes have been accompanied by a substantial increase in man labor efficiency on farms.

Improved Seed Flat

An idea that might be useful when growing next spring's plants is the seed box with removable sides as shown in the above illustration.

The sides are nailed together and attached to the bottom by means of hooks and screw-eyes. When the plants are large enough to be transplanted from the flat, the sides are unhooked and lifted up from the bottom, the soil with the plants in it remaining undisturbed on the bottom board. The plants are then easily separated and pulled up. When ready to use again, the sides are hooked to the bottom, and the flat filled with new soil. Very little root disturbance will result when the small plants are cut from the mass of soil with earth clinging to their roots.

Low Temp. Rendering Of Lard Is Recommended

Your home-rendered lard will be of better quality if you use a low temperature for rendering, nutrition specialists report.

A low temperature is needed to give the greatest yield of lard from the fat and to prevent scorching and sticking, which changes the flavor. Render the lard as promptly as possible after the carcass has been thoroughly chilled—preferably within 24 hours.

There is no better way to boost your business than by local newspaper advertising.
