EDITORIAL

It appears as though a local gasoline war is in the making. Dealers throughout this locality are making concessions in price, not publicly however, as yet.

We have a complaint to make against the state authorities. They are certainly on the ball when it comes to regulating the price of milk but with goats milk in great demand, and the price ranging from 20 to 90 cents per quart, its about time they do something about that.

Those who know say there are not enough goats, which accounts for the high price. We certainly have our share of goats around here, as in other localities — but they don't give milk.

FILL 'ER UP!
Once more the country is in the midst of the vacation season. And this summer, according to the American Petroleum Institute, more than 1,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline will be consumed by American motorists in one of the greatest vacation travel spurges in history. The total of vacation travel by motor car for the three months of June, July and August alone is expected to reach 15,000,000,000 miles. And for the whole of 1951 the vacation speedometer will probably roll clear around to 30 billion miles, an increase of almost 60 percent since 1940.

This is good news for the country's 200,000 service stations, which are now enjoying their busiest period of the year. And when the motorist drives into one of those stations and says "Fill 'er up" he might give a brief moment's thought to the vast and complex organization which makes it possible for that order to be executed as a simple matter of routine. Keeping the service stations supplied with adequate amounts of gasoline and other oil products is a major problem for the oil industry in the summertime. Demand skyrockets on regular highways, and increases many times above normal in mountain, seashore and woodland retreats. But to the oil industry, meeting and solving such problems is just part of the day's work. The gas and the lubricants are always there, to be delivered instantly when the customer drives in and asks for them.

It has been observed that "never before in history have Americans had such power at their fingertips, through the number of cars owned and the quantity and quality of motor fuel available to them." Fill 'er up!

SCRAP IS WORTH MONEY
The steel mills and foundries need more scrap metal than ever—and the farmers of the nation are being asked to sell their scrap to dealers without delay.

The situation is urgent. The steel industry is in the midst of a big expansion program. Mills and foundries are running at a record high rate. The rearmament program, which is not yet in full swing is piling a steadily-increasing military demand for steel on top of the heavy civilian demand. In the face of this, the mills' scrap inventories have been declining, and in some cases have become dangerously low. Steel can't be made without scrap. Each day, during the current year, some 98,000 tons of purchased scrap are required.

Farms are one of the principal sources of scrap. Practically every farmer has on hand obsolete or worn out machinery and other equipment made of iron or steel. These materials are no longer of value to him—but they are a must to the steel industry. And, incidentally, when the farmer sells his useless scrap he is doing himself a financial favor. Scrap prices are good.

The procedure for moving the scrap is simple. Farmers are asked to collect it, take it to town, and sell it to a local dealer. If the scrap is so bulky and heavy as to prevent easy transportation by the farmer himself, he should call the dealer and make arrangements for hauling it away. In cases where the farmer is not certain as to the proper procedure, local farm agents will be glad to help.
More scrap from our farms means more steel for America—at a time when every last possible ton of this all-important metal is needed.

A SAFETY RECORD

Is coal mining one of the most dangerous occupations? Those who answer "yes" to this question should go to the bottom of the class. An analysis of annual reports made by the Workmen's Compensation Department in West Virginia, a major coal producing state, shows that the accident frequency rate in coal mining is less than that of a great many other enterprises — including plumbing!

In 1950, coal was in 20th place on the list. Spokesmen for the Bureau of Mines and other regulatory bodies have praised the coal industry in the highest terms for its accident experience. New safety record after record has been established. There is just no comparison of coal mining now with coal mining as it used to be 25 or 30 years ago.

What has caused so remarkable an improvement? First of all, coal management has concentrated on the safety problem, and labor has effectively cooperated. All miners, and particularly the foremen, are schooled in correct safety procedures. Prizes and other attractions are often offered to crews which achieve outstanding safety records over given periods of time. Every possible safety device is in use.

Second, much of the credit must go to improved mechanical techniques now applied to mining—something which, incidentally, has cost the owners of the mines hundreds of millions of dollars. Intricate, highly efficient machines have made the pick and shovel largely obsolete. The machine, not the miner, provides most of the muscle.
There are hazards in coal mining as in other occupations. But they are far fewer than they once were, and they are getting fewer all the time.

Boy Scouts Here

change of clothing. Food supplies were purchased enroute.
The time taken to cover the trip was 5 days, cooking out, making camp, provided the scouts with a new and exciting experience each day. This trip has also made each boy an expert on hiking, blisters, poison ivy and cooking. The story of their experiences can be better told by the scouts themselves, who might try asking them the proper method of leaving a field which contains a herd of excited cattle. Ronnie Funk is the expert in that particular field of scouting.

Needless to say that the Scoutmasters and Parents of these boys are proud of this accomplishment on their part. It takes a lot of stamina, determination and courage to start out on foot over hard roads, high hills and mountains to a destination of some 80 miles distance. But it is all part of the thrill of scouting, which these and many other boys enjoy. It might be well to add here that these boys refused all offers of rides, 11 in number, except one. They left the Scoutmasters bring them home by truck.
Why not let your son share in these exciting and healthful scouting adventures. If he is 11 or over send him around to the scout den, Monday nights at 7, any and all boys are welcome to join. Always remember our children are worth working for, we appreciate your support.

New Crabgrass Killer

Only three simple steps are required to kill crabgrass with potassium cyanate, STEP No. 1—Carefully read and follow the directions found on each can of potassium cyanate crabgrass killer, STEP No. 2—Mix with water, in a pail or in the sprinker or sprayer itself, STEP No. 3—Spray it on. If the crabgrass is bad, spray the whole lawn. If it appears only as individual plants or in small patches, just spot spray at close range, as shown (3).
A NEW chemical is available this year which shows promise of ending the home owner's long and discouraging battle against his worst lawn enemy—crabgrass. Its name is potassium cyanate and it works by simply mixing it with water and sprinkling or spraying it on your lawn.
After five years of testing and perfecting, potassium cyanate has been proven safe, economical, simple to use and—most important—95 to 100 per cent effective. It is non-toxic enough to be used with-
