45th Christmas Seal Sale is Launched By Govenor John S. Fine and Sons

Pennsylvania's Governor and his sons, John and Donald, in opening the 1951 Christmas Seals at the Capitol received their Seals from Santa Claus as impersonated by Robert Zeiders, a junior high school student of Harrisburg. At the right is Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, Christmas Scal Chairman for Pennsylvania. "I am glad to help in any way possible the Christmas Seal Sale in furtherance of the fight against tuberculosis," the Governor said. The smiling Santa Claus pictured on the Christmas Seal symbolizes the opportunity for citizens generally to join in this health crusade

Butler Health Unit

Tuberculosis is an important phase of public health and any steps taken to improve public health serv-

Pennsylvania, following a public health survey, is taking steps to decentralize and broaden its public health program. In line with this effort Dr. Russell E. Teague, State Secretary of lealth, recently announced that Butler County, through missioners and citizens, has been selected for the first county Public Health Unit to be established under a law enacted this year by the leg-

Research, National Tuberculosis Asociation, is a leader in the nation's fight to prevent and control tuberculosis. The NTA and its 3,000 tuberculosis associations are current ly aiding 35 medical research proj ects from funds derived from th annual sale of Christmas Seals. The Christmas Seal Sale this year is being conducted from Nov. 19

Governor Says Seals Help to Conquer TB

In a statement urging support of the Christmas Seal Sale Governor

John S. Fine said:
"Nearly half a century ago the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be gan officially to fight the widespread and costly disease of tuberculosis Now a program of clinic, laboratory, sanatorium, X-ray survey nursing, and educational services extends to all communities.

"While these things are being done by the State Government the people throughout the Commonwealth are aiding in the fight to conquer tuberculosis by means of the services of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis and Health Society and its affiliated local organizations which are hard at work in every county. The secret of success in this battle is cooperation on the part of all health agencies, official and private, and the people as individuals. This is what we are doing in Pennsylvania.

"The smiling Santa Claus pic tured on this year's Christmas Seal is symbolic of the happiness to be secured by conquering tuberculosis. My hope is that the people of our State will purchase and use them in generous quantity."

A Gift of Health

Col. Henry W. Shoemaker, chairman of the Christmas Seal Sale Sponsoring Committee in Pennsylvania, urges citizens "to again join hands in support of the tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale which helps make our State a healthier place in "The fight to control tuberculosis a preventable disease—is vital to the health and happiness of citizens generally," declared Col. Shoemaker, historian, former diplomat and newspaper publisher. "Christmas Seal dollars not only ease the suffering of others, but, like bread upon the waters, come back in year-round health insurance. The 1951 Christmas Seals showing a cheerful Santa Claus provide a gay and colorful touch for yuletide packages and letters.

"I am particularly gratified to have as Honorary Chairman Gov-ernor John S. Fine who has a deep interest in better health for the citi zens of our Commonwealth, and has encouraged the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis and Health Society in many
