Machine Shed Good Investment
STUDIES have shown that farmers pay double for machinery left exposed to the weather through the winter months. In many cases life of exposed equipment is cut in half, and it was found that upkeep costs were much higher.
Good dividends will be paid on a farmer's investment in a machine shed. In it he can provide room not only for storage of his machinery but his automobile. Besides, it is an excellent place for the farm repair shop.

Many farmers are finding it practical and economical to put up a sectionally built machine shed. The sections are four feet wide, and the building may be made as long as desired. They are easily and quickly bolted together.
As illustrated, a typical machine shed has a continuous side and arched roof made of Masonite Tepered Preswood one-quarter inch thick. This structure not only is durable and storm-proof but provides more room because there are no supporting posts to interfere with movement of machinery.
While the sliding doors shown are best for easy entrance and exit of large machinery, the farmer readily may install overhead doors at the other end where he stores his car and tractor.

PP & L'S REVENUE FOR 1951 WAS OVER $84 MILLION

Pennsylvania Power and Light Company announced total revenues in 1951 of $84.7 millions, a gain of 8.1 per cent over 1950.
Residential farm, and commercial phases of the company's business reached record highs, according to the annual report to stockholders.
Unsettled conditions in the textile industry were reflected in the company's industrial revenues but were more than offset by gains in other types of industrial sales, the report said.
