EDITORIAL

One of our exchanges says: "The government under its present leadership proposes to spend as much the next fiscal year which is allegedly a peace time year, as the government spent during the entire 136 years from 1789 to 1925, which period included the Civil War and World War I. It is time the citizen who has a farm or a home starts thinking about the title to his property. How long is it going to be before he is going to lose them to the government for taxes?"

FREQUENTLY GUESS WORK
When some guy comes along and gives you an estimate, in many instances he is prepared to pay a lot more. Have you ever had that experience?

Let us cite the government's Granby Dam project. The estimated cost was $44,000,000. Now since the work is well under way we learn it will cost at least four or five times the estimated (?) figure—over $200,000,000.

Now here's the joker. A public utility company, in the same area, just put into operation a steam-powered electric plant at a cost of $23,000,000, that will deliver over twice the annual firm power expected of the Granby plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer, its your money, so you better get on the job.

HEADY WINE
A short time ago a group of organizations which represent all branches of food retailing petitioned the Office of Price Stabilization to abolish all controls on food and food products save for cases where the supply is short. The petition pointed out that practically all foods are now plentiful, that present regulations cannot operate fairly and equitably, that the cost of complying with the regulations is in itself inflationary, and that unnecessary controls are costing the taxpayers millions of dollars.

What is true of food is true of practically everything else. A great many commodities in common use are actually selling at below-ceiling prices—for the reason that consumer resistance, coupled with intense competition for business at both the manufacturing and retailing levels, has forced them down. This is a typical working of the free, supply-and-demand market. In that kind of a market, prices always find their level, and the consumer gets the best deal possible.

OPS, of course, has fought every effort either to decontrol prices, or to make major revisions in its policies, orders and regulations. And what we are witnessing here is "controls for the sake of controls." Power is the headiest of wines. When a bureaucrat is given power, he not only hangs on to it with bulldog tenacity but always wants more and more and more. The whole — and highly expensive — OPS organization is a glittering example of that truism.

Relief can only come from Congress. Its plain duty is to examine the entire control system with critical and searching eyes.

A GOOD AMERICAN WORD
A high officer of the New York Stock Exchange recently made a talk before the Indianapolis Rotary Club in which he dealt at some length with the subject of profit. In part, he had this to say: "In recent years there has developed a socialistic philosophy which professes to see something unholy in profits. Just what is unholy about profits, escapes me. The willingness to risk a loss in the hope of making a profit has supplied America with the venture capital which has opened new industrial frontiers and given us a standard of living unsurpassed any place in the world."

ENTER CROCHET CONTEST AT COMMUNITY EXHIBIT

State, County and local fairs all over the United States are getting ready for the biggest needlework contest of the year. This is the Nationwide Crochet Contest, open to all crocheters — men, women and teen-agers—who like the fun of competition with fellow needleworkers. Participating fairs do the preliminary judging in the contest, selecting the best piece entered in each of the sixteen classifications. In this vicinity, contestants can enter their crocheted articles at the Mt. Joy Community Exhibit.

For an official Rules Leaflet and for further information on entering the Nationwide Crochet Contest, contact Mrs. Jay S. Barnhart.

THAT IS NOTHING WE CAN FEEL PROUD OF

The Commonwealth's revenues took a jump during the past ten months. Fewer cigarettes and less beer were sold but there was a marked increase in the sale of liquor.
