Legumes, Fertilizer Re-Build Worn Field

Most Soil Will Produce If Cared for Properly

The teamwork of legumes, grasses and plenty of fertilizer made the difference between these two fields in Huntington County, Indiana, points out the middle west soil improvement committee.

The barren field in the upper photo had 6 feet of soil removed at the deepest point for road fill. It had no soil care, no fertilizer. After three years the field is still badly eroded, cross-cropped with gullies 2 to 3 feet deep.

The lower field located on Norman Thompson's farm near Huntington, had 8 feet of soil removed

FIX-UP TIPS

For Farm and Home

Spring on Clothesline Keeps It Taut

THERE'S nothing so annoying as having to dodge the clothesline in the basement. Here's a simple remedy, illustrated below.

Tie one end of the line to a screen-door spring. Since the spring is not strong enough to carry the weight of a line of clothes, run the end of the line past the spring and tie it to the hook. Leave sufficient slack so that the weight is taken by the line after the spring stretches about one-quarter of its length.

This arrangement keeps the empty line taut and does not interfere with the line in use.—Illustration reproduced through courtesy of Popular Mechanics.

The above fields are examples of what can be done to build soil even on the most barren, eroded fields. Given proper plant food and plenty of it, plus legume-grass mixture, most soil can be made to produce.

from a hilltop, for road fill. As soon as the soil was carted off, Thompson added heavy applications of fertilizer carrying nitrogen, phosphate and potash. Altogether, he used the equivalent of 600 pounds of plant food per acre—approximately 250 pounds of 3-12-12 and 350 pounds of 0-20-0. No lime was needed, as the subsoil is almost neutral.

Thompson seeded bluegrass and some ladino and red clover. The roots anchored well and soon built up a protective growth that yields good forage. Volunteer white clover has come in to add to the pasture.

Now Thompson uses the field for night pasture.

Stocks of Feed Grains Relatively High in June

The bureau of agricultural economics reports relatively large stocks of all feed grains in storage in July. Disappearance in the April-June quarter was larger than in most years for corn, but about usual for oats. It was the heaviest on record for barley.

Approximately 1,270 million bushels of corn were in storage as of July 1, 11 per cent less than on July 1, 1950. Oats stocks of 298 million bushels are the largest carry-over of record by a small margin. The off-farm portion of nearly 34 million bushels is largest of record also.

Barley stock of 93 million bushels are a slightly larger carry-over than average, with the off-farm portion of 53 million bushels.

Toolbox on Wheels

A practical idea for most farmers is the toolbox on wheels. Made of light-weight iron sheets, the drawers can slide on angle-iron channels and store a complete set of hand tools. The handles can be made to fold down when not being moved wheelbarrow fashion. Coaster-wagon wheels will serve the purpose. With a little planning the average farmer can build it easily. The above drawing is a good start on the plans.

Experts See Good Future For Nation's Dairy Farms

Dairying looks profitable for the years ahead, dairy experts believe. They list six reasons: (1) Increased population; (2) higher incomes for the average working man; (3) people are living longer; (4) higher meat prices which are reflected in higher prices for dairy cows and veal; (5) increased use of dairy products; and (6) the greater stress being placed on the use of milk and milk products.

"Completely eliminated the drudgery of washing dairy utensils... so easy my daughter now does the job alone."

SAYS DAIRYMAN HARRY J. BEHRENS OF HIS ELECTRIC DAIRY HEATER

All the hot water that Dauphin County Dairyman Behrens, RD #2, Harrisburg, Pa., needs for dairy herd sanitation is right at hand in the milk house. No more tedious bucket-carrying for him! In fact, now that hot water is always handy, Mr. Behrens can attend to other chores while his daughter handles the whole job of cleaning utensils. And there's plenty of hot water left over for massaging udders, cleaning vacuum lines of the milkers and cleaning the artificial inseminator.

Dairyman Behrens' 15 registered Guernseys and Holsteins enjoy the most sanitary of care with plenty of hot water always on tap and, "the lowered bacteria count of my milk and the reduction in work made this (the 82-gallon electric water heater) a really wise investment," concludes Mr. Behrens.
