EDITORIAL

The farmers throughout this section have our sympathy. May 1 is corn and tomato planting time but with nearly a week's rainfall as of Tuesday, planting is as yet at least one week hence, provided Old Man Sunshine puts in appearance.

"The military are the greatest wasters of man-power we have," is the accusation today, and they may have something at that. Here's an illustration: On a recent contract for ping pong balls, it required 5 1/2 closely typed pages.

THIS LAD HAS NERVE
Can you imagine a lad 17 years old enlisting and asking for Korean duty as soon as possible because his father was reported missing in action on the Korean front? That is what James P. Clark, of Huntingdon, W. Va., did last week.

Let's all hope he succeeds and if and when he does that would fill a heck and make a wonderful movie.

That Weather Man certainly threw a good sized monkey wrench into predictions the past week. He didn't only fool the State and National forecasts—he even had our well known prognosticator, Sammy Miller all befuddled.

Well, it isn't only the weather that cannot be predicted nowadays. Many of the best of them have gone haywire of late, which according to our way of thinking, is the unsettled condition of the country, plus the coming presidential campaign.

THOSE POLITICAL PLUMS WON'T RIPEN

Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love, will not run true to form if newspaper reports from that city are true. That brotherly act will be a thing of the past as far as city jobs and window washing contracts are concerned.

A commission hires municipal employees who are paid about $150,000 a year. Instead of hiring people this commission gets an employment agency to do the work. This agency charges each person hired two weeks pay which runs from $70 to $100.

At City Hall it cost $11,000 a year to have the windows washed and $4,600 a year to have the clocks wound. The window washing job jumped to $11,500 this year and the commission got busy.

In the future employees must wash the windows and wind the clocks and the city taxpayers will save nearly $20,000. There was nothing done about paying a premium for a job.

A Pair of Skirts

Any resemblance to an idea long used by the man of the family is certainly accidental. The extra skirt provided with this ensemble is for double fashion. One skirt is plain as photographed, and the other, not shown, is in fine black and white checked fabric to match the coat. The whole outfit is doubly practical, too, because it is made of a durable, wrinkle-resistant, and wrinkle-shedding, soil resistant and wrinkle-shedding. The folded cuff on the jacket is adjustable.

'Welcome Sweet

(From page 1)

James Young, 47, Mount Joy; Mrs. Richard Drager, 48, Columbia Rl; Mrs. Lester Hawthorne, Marietta Rl; and Mrs. Merle Arnold, Findlay, Ohio; a tie for 1949; Mrs. Kenneth Roth, 30, Maytown, and Miss Doris Ginder, 51, Rheems.

The two past queens who cannot be present are Mrs. Chester Smith, Hilton Village, Virginia; class of '37 and Mrs. Dale Keiser, Malvina, Wisconsin, class of '46.

Attendees for the queen and her court were named: David Sweigart, Roy Peifer, Roy Adams, Stanley Murphy, and Glen Arnold will attend the five queen candidates. Betsy Mumma will be escorted by Raymond Geopfrick; Betsy Musser, Gerald Lindemuth; Patsy Wolfe, George Rhoads; Sarah Singer, Donald Wolgemuth; Phyllis Wolgemuth, Fred Wetzel; and Jo Ann Arnold by Jack McKain.

The queen will be crowned by last year's queen, Miss Doris Ginder. The affair will take place on the athletic field with a rain date for Friday, May 9. The Faculty committee is Mrs. Paul Gingrich, Mrs. Joe Llewellyn, Miss Phyllis Morrison, Miss Irene Sloat, Robert Phillips, Kenneth Depoe, and Edward Richter.

THE FARM QUESTION BOX

by BILL GIVENS
KYW Farm Director

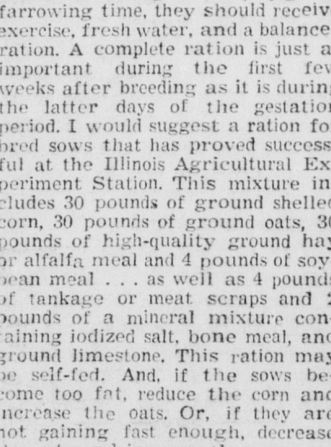

From—Mrs. L.C., Vineland, N.J.
Q.—What can I do with a lilac bush which has been cut down and persists in coming up again?
Ans.—This is not too uncommon a situation, even though it may sound a little unusual. One of two things will eliminate this perplexing problem for you—the use of 2-4-D weed killer or a product known as brush killer.

If there is any sign of life, or perhaps I should say growth, now during the dormant season I would suggest the use of the brush killer. If not, spraying the area with 2-4-D as directed will do the trick and quite effectively in most cases.

From—Mr. V.L., Ephrata, Pa.
Q.—What do you consider a good ration suggestion for brood sows?
Ans.—If brood sows are to produce litters of strong healthy pigs at farrowing time, they should receive exercise, fresh water, and a balanced ration. A complete ration is just as important during the first few weeks after breeding as it is during the latter days of the gestation period. I would suggest a ration for brood sows that has proved successful at the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station. This mixture includes 30 pounds of ground shelled corn, 30 pounds of high-quality ground hay or alfalfa, meal and 4 pounds of soybean meal, as well as 4 pounds of tankage or meat scraps and 2 pounds of a mineral mixture containing iodized salt, bone meal, and ground limestone. This ration may be self-fed. And, if the sows become too fat, reduce the corn and increase the oats. Or, if they are not gaining fast enough, decrease the oats and increase the corn.

From—Mr. J.B., Souderton, Pa.
Q.—Can I stop a cherry tree from bleeding?
Ans.—Unfortunately, there is no way to stop a cherry tree from bleeding. Authorities say this problem has come up many times and although many remedies have been tried, no cure has yet been discovered. Once a cherry tree starts to bleed, you cannot stop it. This happens with certain varieties and must be a weakness in a particular variety or tree.
