In Korea

Dear friends:

I have received your package today and sure was glad to get it. It took quite a time for me to get it since I left Texas.

Right now, I'm some place, somewhere in Korea. All I ever see over here is hills, up one and down another.

Well I don't have much more time right now, but I'll try and do better next time.

I want to thank you all again for what you have done for us.

In Korea

Dear Members of the Committee:

I received the lovely gifts of stationary supplies that has been sent to me here in Korea, and I wish to express my thanks to all those that have made this Committee's wonderful efforts possible.

I know that these efforts are appreciated by all of the others from Mt. Joy who are now serving in the Armed Forces, and wish to join them in my sincere appreciation for the wonderful work the Committee is doing, and for the citizens interests in this worthwhile project.

The Weekly Mount Joy Bulletin, is a great Morale Lifting Factor for the troops, consisting of Penna. Boys, here in Korea, and is read and enjoyed by many others as well, it really brings a touch of home to us, so far from there. Thanking all of you for your kindness shown I remain,

Respectively Yours,
Cpl. Albert R. Rettew

Social Security Benefits For Farm Workers

Many farm workers will attain their sixth quarter of coverage under social security in the April-May-June quarter of 1952. A year and a half has gone by since old-age and survivors insurance protection was extended to regularly employed farm workers. Farm help, staying on one farm during this 6-quarter period, now have a "fully insured" status under social security.

Just what does it mean to be "fully insured?"

It means plenty in terms of insurance protection!

It means a worker has enough credit in his social security account to provide benefits to his family in case of his death.

It means a worker, now 65 or over, has enough social security credits to guarantee himself a monthly income for life.

From now on old-age survivors insurance claims will be filed by farm workers and their families. Whenever an insured farm worker retires at age 65 or later, he'll file for his retirement insurance; whenever an insured farm worker dies, his family will claim the survivors' insurance.

Payment of these insurance claims will be based on wage credits in the farm worker's social security account; wage credits earned by the worker; wage credits reported by the farm operator; wage credits paid for by both the farm worker and his employer. That's why it is so important for farm earnings to be properly reported for social security purposes.

Here are some pointers to follow:

1. A farm worker should have one social security number and should make sure his employer has a record of it.

2. A farmer, hiring regular farm help, should register with his collector of internal revenue to get the quarterly social security forms needed for reporting social security wage credits.

3. Farm help coverage is relatively new, so a farm worker should make sure his wage credits are getting posted to his social security account. Ask your nearest social security office for an accounting!

4. Both farm workers and farm operators can get full information, free of charge, from their local social security office.
