OWL LAFFS

BY A WISE OWL

An erring husband from Florin had come home with a few drinks too many under his belt, to be met with an irate and packing-up-to-leave wife. She spurned his somewhat apologies and, continuing to pack, said icily, "If it were the first time, Henry, I could forgive it, but you can't come home in just the same state in October, 1926."

 Having a payday once a month
 Is really quite a joke—
 For just one day we live like kings.
 For twenty-nine we're broke!

 Here's one that backfired:
 Fond of practical jokes, a local man, out of a clear blue sky, once sent a friend a telegram — collect — which read: "I am perfectly well."

A week later the joker received a heavy parcel — collect — on which he had to pay considerable charges. On opening it, he found a big block of concrete on which was pasted this message: "This is the weight your telegram lifted from my mind."

 Gwennie Kramer was cleaning house at their summer home and packed up the glassware, to bring to town and wash and pack away for the winter. She also brought a pack of old cans to be thrown in the garbage cans.

The next day she unpacked what she thought were the dishes — only to find she had thrown the wrong pack in the garbage cans — running to see if they were still there, she found the garbage men had collected them already — now she says Russ will have to go to the dump and find them or eat out of tin cans next summer.

 Here is the latest poem by Dewey Jr., our new poet.

Little Willie hung his sister;
 She was dead before we missed her.
 Willie's always up to tricks.
 Ain't he cute? He's only six.

Terrific, yes — ???
 That's O. K. Dewey, keep trying, one of these days you'll hit the jackpot.

 Speaking of Little Willie, just heard that "Little Willie" Wills and Gwennie went wading in the creek last Sunday a week, the day it rained so hard. . . but didn't stop them . . . they took off their shoes and laid them on the bank . . . they didn't want to get them wet.

 "Should I take junior to the zoo?"
 "Naw, if the zoo wants him, let 'em come and get him."

 Did you hear about the new ordinance that is going to go into effect in Mt. Joy? It says no lions shall be allowed to run wild on the streets of the town.

No kidding — Parke told us he must carry a net in his car after October 1st.

Fellowship

 of the church. This gift was presented in the name of the Ladies' Bible Class, the Young Ladies' Bible Class, the Ladies' Aid Society, the Women's Missionary Society, the Sunday School Association, the Brotherhood, and the Church Council, to help defray the pastor's expenses when he attends the Biennial Convention of the United Lutheran Church in America, to be held in Seattle, Washington, October 8-15.

Pastor Koder responded with a word of appreciation and thanks for the thoughtfulness of the groups making the gift, and briefly outlined the projects and work of the parish.

The evening's entertainment included two cello solos by Mrs. Samuel Harnish, accompanied by her husband. Mr. Harnish led the group singing, which was accompanied by Miss Beulah Smith.

A Parcel Post Auction and a "fish pond" for the children provided fun for all attending and "funds" for the sponsoring group. Approximately $100 was realized from the sale of Parcel Post packages sent by friends of the members of the Ladies' Bible Class. Packages had been received from many distant points in the United States, from Canada, Norway, and North Africa. Top prices were paid for an engraved picture of the White House, sent by Mrs. Harry Truman and purchased by Mr. George Keener; a hand-painted polished wood bowl sent from Norway, purchased by Mrs. Irvin Smith Sr.; an Arabic pin from Casa Blanca, purchased by Mrs. Richard Rice; and a decorative Bicentennial Plate from the University of Pennsylvania, sent by the president of that institution, Mr. Harold Stassen, purchased by Mr. Clyde Eshelman.

The members of the Ladies' Bible Class wish to thank all who sent packages for this social, and all who helped to make the evening a success.

A Record-Breaking Registration

This week the registration of voters in the county went well above the 100,000 mark which surely indicates a real interest in the coming presidential election.

Jaycees, veterans organizations and others played an important part in getting voters out to register and reserve a lot of credit. However, the effort should now be continued until election eve, for there's absolutely no sense in registering and then not voting.

But we have watched voters long enough to realize that, no matter how important an election may be, if somebody suggests a little fishing trip—or if it should happen to rain—Mr. John Q. Voter will stay away in droves.

We know who we would like to see elected this year—but just the same we realize that as long as a majority of those eligible, do vote, that the future of the nation is comparatively safe.

Taxes, Taxes, Taxes

We hear a lot of talk about taxes, taxes on the local level that is, and possible tax increases in the immediate future. It's a subject which should rate high in interest among all of our readers. Yet, important as it may be, few do more than crab a bit about it.

We would appreciate the need for taxes a lot more if more of us would do something about better acquainting ourselves with the facts. And how do you do that? Well, one way is to drop in on your borough council when it holds its regular monthly meetings.

These meetings are open to the public, although few seem to realize this. In fact, we know that those fellows who serve on council would be mighty happy if more taxpayers did show up and would give them a bit of moral support for some of the many problems facing the borough.

Nullifying An Improvement

Turnpikes are the answer to the present-day through traffic problem. Yet when an accident occurs such as that on the New Jersey Turnpike last week in which a bus crashed into a truck injuring 43 persons, we wonder if the good to be derived is not nullified by the added danger of these new, modern highways.

The same situation exists on our own Pennsylvania Turnpike. In fact, it seems even more dangerous than any other turnpike in the east. To us, this is to some extent due to the fact that no effort has been made up to recent months to control speed. At the risk of appearing old-fashioned, we express the thought that sixty miles an hour is plenty fast for anybody. And when trucks go faster than that, a child can realize the terrible danger to life and limb resulting.

In New York State the Merritt highway is one of the safest due probably to the fact that trucks are relegated to truck highways and speeds are definitely kept under the sixty-mile-an-hour point. And when Pennsylvania builds highways in which lanes are divided, separate trucks from pleasure cars and, in addition, control speed, then we will have the type of highway safety every motorist deserves. But not until then!

Food For Thought

Imprisoned Japanese war criminals "want out." Their sentences, they declare, were unreasonable, uncalled for, and illegal. A few weeks ago, a former official of the Japanese foreign office was quoted as saying that "the real war criminal (in 1941) was Roosevelt," who was guilty of "deceiving and provoking Japan into attacking Pearl Harbor."

Much is made in this fantastic charge of President Roosevelt's refusal in 1941 to meet with Japan's Prime Minister, Prince Konoye, in a last-minute effort to reach agreement and avert war. Yet before he committed suicide after the war Konoye admitted that no agreement he might have brought back to Tokyo, short of complete capitulation by the United States to Japan's demands, could have kept the Japanese war party from setting off the conflagration.
