Inter-Phone System Expected To Be Completed Next Week

The inter-phone system that will enable Joan Brosey Hess to continue her education from her home is expected to be completed some time next week.

Clark Berrier, local representative of the Columbia Telephone Company, who is giving his time, has just recently completed stringing the wire from Joan's home to the grade school. Berrier stated that it takes two wire shield cables for the inter-phone system. This is a special kind of wire.

The Rotary Club of Mt. Joy is underwriting the project and when completed, it will enable Joan to answer questions as well as receive assignments from her teacher.

Joan is the eleven year old girl who has been blind from birth and is now crippled by a bone disease in both legs from her hips down.

$150 Received For Xmas Gifts

One hundred fifty two dollars has been received from citizens by the Mt. Joy Remembrance Committee during their latest drive for funds for the Xmas boxes. It isn't very much considering the big job it is to send gifts to 100 or more men in the service. The Committee hopes you will do as Bob Germer says in his letter.

Dear Committee:
Please accept this small contribution as a token of my appreciation for your thoughtfulness while I was in Korea. I am sure others feel as I do that your cause is a worthwhile one. I know your organization is small in number so let us hope that the people of Mount Joy open up their hearts and their Pocket Books in full support of your efforts to let your service men and women know they are being remembered.

Over $2,000 In Prizes, Special Prizes And Bonus Awards In Six Weeks Contest

Special Prizes For First Week

Just to start the ball rolling so to speak, and as a little added incentive to prompt action on the part of those who intend to participate in this circulation contest this newspaper will award 20 special cash prizes, consisting of ten $25 special cash prizes and ten $10 special cash prizes to aggressive "early starters" making the best showing up to and including Saturday night, October 4th.

These special cash prizes are in addition to the regular 20 per cent cash commission, but to show good faith a minimum of $100 in subscription collections (both new and renewal) is necessary to qualify for a special prize, and, after all, this is a comparatively small amount and easily obtainable.

Then, too, there's still another extra special $25 cash prize on top of the above offer and substantial results obtained during the first week of the contest—as more fully described in the announcement elsewhere in this issue. It is easily possible, therefore, for anyone to earn $100 cash, or more, during his or her very first week in the contest, while at the same time accumulating a big total of votes toward winning one of the major prizes.

$500 Cash 2nd Prize

You are invited to take part in one of the greatest prize giving events ever inaugurated in this area and share in the distribution of prizes to be awarded by the Bulletin in a short six week subscription contest announced today.

Although this paper already enjoys a wide circulation in this area, we are desirous of adding several hundred new subscribers and at the same time giving present readers an equal opportunity to renew their subscription at the special reduced long term rate to be in effect during the six week subscription drive just starting . . .

With this end in view, we have planned, and today announce, the most interesting and altogether attractive award offer imaginable in which $1000 in cash will be the first prize, the second prize will be $500 in cash followed by four nice placement awards and a veritable shower of money in the form of extremely liberal commissions, payable each day or as desired.

Four Periods
This subscription contest is divided into four periods, each period the votes given on subscriptions decrease in value, thus giving the early starter a decided advantage.

Each week in the contest, those who are participating, will know exactly the position they are in, whether first, second, third, etc., as standings will be published weekly in the Bulletin.
