District Chorus Concert Oct. 17

The fourth annual Elasthan District Chorus Concert will be held in the Milton Hershey School Auditorium on Friday evening, October 17, beginning at 8:00. Professor Nevin Fisher, director of music at Elizabethtown College, will conduct, with Mrs. Kenneth Frey of Palmyra and Miss Lorraine Stehman of Lititz accompanying on two pianos. Choir members from 27 congregations of the Church of the Brethren, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, will compose the 200-voice chorus.

The concert will include 17 anthems to be sung by the chorus, and in addition, several hymns from the new Brethren Hymnal to be sung by the audience. Included on the program are "Be Not Afraid," from Mendelssohn's Elijah, and Alleluia, by Thompson, The Hallelujah Chorus, Handel; The Lord's Prayer, Malotte; Come, Come Ye Saints, from the Mormon Tabernacle Choir Hymnal, and Listen to the Lambs, by R. Nathaniel Dett.

This concert was planned by the Eastern Pennsylvania Music and Worship Commission whose members are Professor Nevin Fisher, chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Frey and Mrs. Robert Sollenberger, co-secretaries; Rev. Berkey Knaevel, treasurer; Mr. E. G. Meyer; and Rev. Carl Ziegler.

NEWCOMER—DOUGHERTY

The marriage of Miss Phyllis Jane Dougherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Dougherty, Landisville, to H. Clarence Newcomer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phares Newcomer, Lititz RD2, took place at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at the Landisville Church of God with Rev. R. H. Daikh, assisted by Dr. H. W. Cover, officiating.

The occasion also marked the 25th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Serving as maid of honor was Miss Kathryn Miller, cousin of the bride, of Bristol. Bridesmaids were Miss Betty Edwards, Landisville; Miss Marilyn Brubaker, Lancaster RD3; and Miss Nancy Newcomer, niece of the bridegroom, Lititz RD2.

Roy L. Bomberger, cousin of the bridegroom, Elm, served as best man and the ushers were Kenneth H. Dougherty, Landisville, brother of the bride; Bruce A. Burkholder, Lititz; and James A. Newcomer, cousin of the bridegroom, Mount Joy RD1.

3 Minute Fiction

ORDINARILY Angus wouldn't have interfered. Boys the age of his son Craig were apt to have love affairs—lots of them—before they settled down and thought about getting married. It was natural, state that every youth had to pass through. But this latest heart throbber seemed to have a hold on the youth. Angus had made discreet inquiries, and discovered her name was Leslie Day and that she was a good deal older than Craig.

Angus wasn't stupid enough to ask his son direct questions. Since the boy's mother had died he had learned that roundabout, indirect methods were far more apt to produce results.

"Suppose we go down to the beach and open up Peak's Head for a few weeks, Craig? Have some people down and make a holiday of it? Anyone in particular you'd like to have around for a few days?"

"Well! I was going to suggest it myself." Craig's voice assumed a note of casualness. "I'd like to have Don Waldron down and Lisbeth Gae. Then there's a girl I've been seeing some. Leslie Day. She's a good sport."

"Fine! You go ahead and do the inviting, and I'll have Ordway run down to the Head and get 'things ready.'"

Two days before they were to leave for the Head, Angus called a friend and made a few arrangements that he didn't confide to Craig. The friend said sure, he'd be glad to come and bring his niece.

Angus was on hand when Craig and his young friends arrived. Easly he picked Leslie Day out of the crowd. Anyone could tell she was older than Craig. She had dark hair and eyes and a quiet manner.

Angus' feeling toward Leslie Day suffered none during the evening and half day that preceded Jim Crouch's arrival with his niece, whom he introduced as Dorcas Haines. Jim hadn't underestimated a bit. Dorcas was a knockout.

"They play well together, don't they?" he said to Leslie.

"And look well together," she supplemented.

Angus had an uncomfortable feeling that Leslie could see through him perfectly.

"Look," he said, "it's no fun sitting here. Suppose you let me show you around?"

ANGUS decided before the week had passed that his scheme was working perfectly. Craig was spending as much time alone with Dorcas as he possibly could without appearing rude.

Craig came into his father's room on the sixth evening.

"Dad," I must talk to you. I—I'm in love."

"That's quite natural. Miss Day is a fine girl."

"That's the point, Dad. It isn't Leslie. It—it's Dorcas."

Angus did his best to appear surprised. He tried to think of a few original and paternal remarks apropos to the situation, and made a botch of the whole business. In the end, Craig, looking rather chagrined, said good night and departed. Angus sat by his bedroom window a long time. Well, he'd made a pretty mess of things.

He found her the next morning under the orange and green umbrella near the courts.

"Miss Day, I've a job to do that's really the hardest thing I've ever tackled. Please be as kind as you can when you hear me."

"Is it about Craig?"

Angus stared. He opened his mouth, closed it, became acutely conscious of the amused look in her eyes and reddened. "That," he blurted suddenly, "is only half of it. The other half is that I've fallen in love with you myself. Did you know that, too?"

"It would rather spoil an otherwise delightful scene if I were to say yes. Therefore I won't. Are you asking me to marry you? If so—the astonishing part is, I share a similar feeling. I mean, oh, it's all so ridiculous!"

Angus' heart leaped. "That makes it perfect! Your blushing, I mean. I had begun to think you were too sure—Oh, hang, I've known you from the first day. And so have you, I guess. But what else matters now that we've been truthful with each other?"

"Nothing," said Leslie.
