Inspection And License Deadline, January 31

Motorists face two important deadlines which they must meet to assure themselves of their vehicles after January 31, according to a warning issued today by R. B. Maxwell, of Harrisburg, secretary-manager of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation which represents 57 member AAA clubs throughout the Commonwealth.

"These two deadlines, both of which arrive at midnight, January 31, are the matter of the renewal of operators' licenses and the inspection of motor vehicles in the current semi-annual inspection campaign," Mr. Maxwell pointed out.

"Failure to meet both, or either, of these deadlines will mean that a driver cannot operate a vehicle or that a car owner cannot drive his car until such time as these requirements are met," he said.

"Since this double-barrelled deadline is rapidly approaching," the AAA official continued, "motorists and car owners should avoid any further delay in renewing their operating privileges for another year or in having their cars inspected at an official inspection station or garage."

"With both these deadlines near at hand," Mr. Maxwell warned, "any further delay could easily result in the inability of a motorist to legally operate his vehicle after January 31, and until such time as he could meet both requirements."

"Both the Bureau of Motor Vehicles, which issues operators' licenses, and official inspection stations and garages, will be faced with the inevitable last-minute rush," he concluded. "Play it safe by obtaining the new operator's license and having your car inspected immediately."
