

Pk. Meters Showing Steady Increase In Collections Since Being Installed

Gross Business Reaches The $5,000 Mark

There are two sides to every question and the one side in favor of parking meters is the fact that the revenue being collected from them is helping the borough fathers in meeting borough expenses. This fact, in all probability, will be a factor next year in keeping taxes down.

The parking public has evidently decided that parking meters are, and have been something that must be "put up with" as each week the monies collected have shown an increased $5,000, and, as the saying goes "that ain't hay".

Mindful of the fact that the first $5000 has given the borough extra police protection and taken care of a lot of other incidentals, the councilmen, at Monday night's meeting, decided to amend the parking meter ordinance which will result in the installation of additional parking meters throughout the borough.

The amendment was passed only after a five-to-one vote was taken with Elmer Zephey, council president, casting the opposing vote.

Favoring the amendment were the following councilmen: Lester Hostetter, George Groff, James Spangler, Lloyd Myers and Maurice Bailey.

Streets To Be Metered
Additional meters will be placed on: west side of North Barbara St. to Mount Joy St., west side of S. Barbara Street to Sassafras Alley; south side of Marietta Avenue to Henry St.; N. Market from Main to Apple Tree alley, and S. Market to Henry St., both sides of Delta St., from Main to Henry.

Every Day Is A Beautiful Day

"Every day is a beautiful day", Joan Hess told her school teacher, Mrs. Margaret Shaeffer. The reason for Joan's statement, stated Mrs. Shaeffer, is that she is now able to go to school the same as any other child, even though she cannot attend classes at the school. The inter-Communication system that connects Joan's home with the school has enabled her to keep up with the other children, Mrs. Shaeffer said.

Mrs. Shaeffer, who has taken over the duties of teaching Joan over the system, spoke at the regular Tuesday dinner meeting of the Rotary Club held at Hostetter's.

Mrs. Shaeffer explained to the Rotarians the progress made by Joan in her studies and the interest shown by her in her desire to learn. The other pupils are as interested in Joan's progress as she is herself, the teacher stated.

Joan Hess is the little girl who is both blind and crippled, and now through a program sponsored by the Rotary Club of Mount Joy, is able to go on with her education.

When your doorbell rings on Saturday and you find a local member of the Lions Club smiling at you with a broom in his hands, stop and think twice before you say No. That broom was made by the hands of a blind person, his only means of employment without sight.

Estock Bldg. Case Nears Settlement

Although Borough Council Monday night approved an agreement suggested by the courts in settlement of the Steven K. Estock case, does not mean that the case is settled. If Estock does not agree to move his house the required eight feet as suggested and approved by the Board of Adjustment, and Council, the case will be no further along than before.

About two years ago, Estock had been charged with violating the borough's zoning ordinance. After once relocating the structure, was forced to stop work on the building because the zoning officials refused to issue a building permit, claiming he was still violating the zoning ordinance. The dwelling has had to remain unfinished while Estock made several attempts to settle the case in court.

The Board of Adjustment formerly ordered the structure moved back 15 feet. In order to settle the case, the Board of Adjustment and council approved the suggested agreement that Estock move his building only 8 feet and pay all costs of the case.
