The force of WILL-POWER

THE SCENE: A young man graduates.

THE POWER BEHIND THE SCENE: A prudent and thoughtful father had a lawyer draw his Will, naming us executor and trustee, providing a trust fund for his son's college education.

THE RESULT: Another young man has a good start in life, thanks to foresight, and a well-planned Will. Ask how we can serve you.

BIG WHEEL

His first "grown-up" two-wheeler—few days in his life will give him such a sense of joy and importance. Perhaps not till the day he owns his first car will he feel like such a big wheel.

You gave him the bicycle—but have you given him the training he needs to ride it safely? Just as you went through a period of training in order to drive a car safely and sensibly—so should he be prepared to ride his bike.

Teach him to obey traffic signals. If he must ride in traffic, teach him to keep to the right... to signal when he wants to turn into a side road or street. There are things that are dangerous to do—stunt-ride in traffic... carry another child on the handlebars... ride in the dark without the proper headlight and tail light... hitch on to a moving vehicle. Make certain that he knows these dangers—and avoids them.

Bicycles are a lot of fun, and they need not end in a traffic tragedy—if you teach your children the rules of bicycle safety. Parents, that is your responsibility.

This message in the interest of highway safety is one of a series prepared and disseminated by the Pennsylvania Newspapers Publishers' Association and the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue.
