Peace In Korea

If we were to pick out the paramount desire of Americans as a whole it would be peace in Korea, an end to killing young men in any or all parts of the world. Whether the hope of a world free of bloodshed ever will be realized is something none of us know or can guess.

But peace in Korea in the past year or so became almost an obsession. For while all of us are willing to fight communism and while our young men are willing to fight any effort of the communists to change our way of life here, few of us can see the merit of fighting against the odds which Korea has presented.

Not Growing Old

When one gets on the wrong side of forty-five, one's thoughts too, too often dwell upon the various phases of getting old. And that is one thing everyone should guard against. As we see it, sitting in our rickety ol' swivel chair, there's an awful lot to that saying that one is as old as he feels.

Norman Vincent Peale in his weekly article in the Ink-wire (wish we could get the guy to write for us) puts it this way: "You don't have to let yourself grow old. You can get your mind so eager, so zealous, so filled with ever-expanding interests that you just can't be tired or aged."

"Think and live God's way and you will draw upon vitality and power. Cast worry, hate and doubt from your thoughts. Affirm that God's recreative power renews your life. Practise God's laws of health and well-being, and you will stimulate the ageless life."

Yep, that's our sentiments all the way!

Going It Alone

Senator Taft's statement about the United States going it alone without the U.N. may seem a bit unpopular in light of President Eisenhower's refusal to go along with that sentiment. But don't be too sure about the public.

As we scurry about, up and down Main Street each week, we get quite a few expressions of opinion and if our fellow-townsmen are any criterion, the man on the street is not too enthusiastic about the results of our participation in the United Nations.

To him, about all that has happened is that we have carried the load, financially and otherwise, here and in Korea, and about all that has happened is that Russia has been given an ideal sounding-off board to loudly insult us to our faces.

Back in Wilson's day when Senator Lodge succeeded in keeping us out of the League of Nations, the public was, if the polls of that day were correct, preponderantly for our participation in the League. But Lodge was an able politician and we were kept out of the League.

Today, if present-day polls are correct, the public is sick and tired of our role in the U.N., yet we find Former Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, grandson of the Henry Cabot Lodge of League of Nations fame, working feverishly to keep us in the U.N. And while the public wants no part of it, we continue to stay in the U.N. and, literally, turn the other cheek.

My oh my, what a whale of a difference a few years can make!

Our Type of Fisherman

While we bought a complete outfit about five years ago, and despite annual resolutions to the contrary, we haven't gotten out along a stream yet. But we're going to get our schedule straightened out one of these days, and then look out!

We have made some progress though. A study of the subject has revealed to us that there are two types of fishermen, the one who has a big supply of flies, gets into the middle of the stream and feverishly works at casting about from one low limb to some bush on the far shore.

He studies the feeding habits of the particular type of fish he wants to catch, finds the nearest substitute (he never would think of using the original if he can find any similar facsimile), determines the temperature of the water near the surface as well as deep down, and then adjusts his sinkers accordingly—and then seldom gets anything but exercise.

The other type of fisherman finds something soft to sit on (he always does that first) then re-examines his lunch and beverage, sampling same, and then gets out a pole, hook, line and—believe it or not—worm. Then he sits there comfortably enjoying the peace and quiet of God's grand outdoors, gets so engrossed in the antics of some butterfly or chickadee that if he does get a bite he may not realize it unless the durned fish is dumb enough to get all snagged up.

Nope, he doesn't care if he catches anything or not—he's there to enjoy himself. Now, dear reader, take one guess on the kind of fisherman we're going to be just as soon as we get time to get away!

OWL LAFFS

BY A WISE OWL

I overheard the following conversation the other night.

John: "I hear you are keeping a keg of beer in your bedroom."

Russ: "Yes, I'm 'aking it to gain strengin."

John: "Any results?"

Russ: "Marvelous! When I first got the thing I could hardly lift it, and now I can carry it all around the room."

(You better check, Russ there must be a leak in it.)

I heard Cappy Mumma dislocated his shoulder, trying to show the fellows down at the Mill how big the fish were, that he had caught.

Here's a poem Chief Neiss sent in — — —

Don't ask me why,
Young Mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard
To get the iceman a bracer;
But Hubby came in
And instead of gin,
The iceman got only a chaser!

Dyke Garber told me "A girl's clothes are at their best when she feels the coolest and looks the hottest."

Philosopher Enck says: "Many a man who gets beside himself should change his environment."

Here's one I almost forgot—
The other week a man drove up to Newcomers Garage, and hurriedly ran into the shop and told Earl Myers he has a short circuit in his car. — — — Earl told the man he would have to wait awhile, the mechanics were all busy — — — and the man told Earl he was sorry he couldn't wait, his car was on fire.

A Florin woman whose hubby was missing called the police and gave his description as a handsome man, six feet two, with wavy black hair, dark blue eyes, tremendous shoulders and an exceptionally good dresser.

The next day a friend called and said, "I read where your husband is missing, but what kind of description is that? Your husband is short, fat, bald and dresses like a slob."

"Yeah," said the woman, "but who wants that bum back!"

Over at the fire house last night a kibitzer was watching a pinochle game. In back of him was a second kibitzer. When the card-player lost the game by one point, the first kibitzer turned around to the second kibitzer and said, "Beat it! You're hard luck to me!"

Did you hear about the traveling salesman who returned home after a year on the road to find that his wife had been untrue to him? "Who was it?" he demanded. "Was it my friend Bob?"

"No," answered the faithless one. "Was it my friend Tom, or Joe?"

"No," answered his wife. "Was it my friend Harry?"

"Whatsamatter?" screamed the woman. "don't you think I have friends of my own?"

An Englishman and a Scotsman were playing golf. After the first hole, the Englishman turned to his Scottish friend.

"How many did you take?" he asked.

"Seven," replied the Scotsman.

"I took six, so that's my hole," said the Englishman.

After the second hole, the Englishman asked the same question. This time the Scotsman shook his head.

"Na, na, laddie," he replied, "it's mae turn to ask first now."

Ronny Garlin went down to Ruft's sale Tuesday night and bought himself two dozen combs — — — I hope he never gets bald.

I was telling the fellows up at Chet's that next year when John and I go to Potter County for several days we are traveling light, our only equipment will be a jug of whiskey that John is taking for rattlesnake bites.

And when one fellow asked me what I was talking, I told him "Two Rattlesnakes."

I heard a television comedian say that he believes that man soon will be able to get clear around the world in two hours: one hour for flying, and the other to get to the airport.

I heard this intelligent conversation at the Acme store Monday:

An electrician, asked "Have you any four-volt two-watt bulbs?"

"For what?" asked Charlie

"No, two."

"Two what?"

"Yes."

"No."

Lowdown From Hickory Grove

For study and comment in today's seminar, it will be the pros and cons of "sassafra." I get considerably het up and perturbed as I listen to the expounding of great theories and hazy ideas on how to make you and me happy, sorta automatic and without fatiguing effort. I am not so particularly het up about the folks who do the expounding—it is the parties of the second part who fall for the "sassafra."

Instead of growing more astute and being able to determine if it is a wolf in sheep's clothing or if it is a real sheep, we have progressed backwards. But from over in the school house we get proposals for more and more dinero for education as the one sure way to ward off communism. The man there says nothing about the folks in our land who foment most of our socialist and communist commotion. The greatest fomenters are educated individuals. He is mum on that angle.

So now, why do we accept such polished palaver — why don't we look under the covers — why don't we put a simple 2 and 2 together and ask if it is salesmanship or what. Education is big business—the biggest — but still we don't savvy "sassafra." Aesop—you don't see Aesop in any school house library. Putting it there should be our next chore.

Yours with the low down,
JO EERRA
