OWL LAFFS

BY A WISE OWL

Why Is It?
When a garage man makes a mistake, he adds it to your bill.
When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference.
When a lawyer makes a mistake, it was just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.
But when the editor makes a mistake . . . good night! The whole world knows it!

A local mother took her seven-year-old daughter to a highly progressive day school. The first question she was asked: "Are you a little boy or a little girl?"
"I'm a little boy," was the answer.
Teacher went on, scaring the mother to death . . . the child was psychologically confused, etc. On the way home mother asked, "Darling, why did you say you were a boy?"
"Cause when anybody asks me a dumb question, I give a dumb answer."
Today's children?

A young woman and a handsome farm lad near Landisville were walking along a country road one evening. The farm lad was carrying a large pail on his back, holding a chicken in one hand, a cane in the other, and leading a goat. They came to a long dark lane.
Said the girl: "I'm afraid to walk here with you. You might try to kiss me."
Said the farm lad: "How could I, with all these things I'm carrying?"
"Well, you might stick the cane in the ground, tie the goat to it, and put the chicken under the pail."

A fellow on Mt. Joy Street went to a local doctor and asked "If there's anything wrong with me, don't give me a long scientific name. Say it so I can understand it."
"Very well—you're lazy," said the doctor.
"Gee, thanks. Now gimme the scientific name I got a report it to the boss."

I asked a friend if he ever seen anyone like my wife—and he explained—
"Yeah, once—but I had to pay admission."
— Me and my big mouth!!!

Prof. Enck says "A wit is a man who says what you could have said if you had thought of it."

Mother: "Daughter, before you get serious with Tom be sure he is always kind."
Daughter: "Oh, I'm sure of that, mother, he told me just the other day he put his shirt on a horse that was scratched."

Earl Miller told me about the guy who decided to reform—The first week he cut out tobacco—The second week he cut out drink—The third week he cut out the fair sex—And the fourth week he cut out paper dolls!

Happiness sneaks in through a door you didn't know you left open.

Looking over its live file, the Bureau of Minor Research finds this one still unsettled: At what age does a bachelor become "Confirmed"? — Tell 'em Byshel!

Judge — "Aren't you ashamed to be seen here in Court so often?"
"Prisoner—"Why, no your honor, I always thought it was a very respectable place."

Here's one Les Funk sent me. Today as I stood on a corner,
I was thrown for a twenty year loss
When a cub scout, called two of his friends—
And offered to help me across!

A local weekly newspaper carried a help-wanted ad for: "Executive Director, from 24 to 40. To sit at desk from 9 to 5 and watch other people work. Must be willing to play golf every other afternoon. Salary over $300 to start. (We don't have this job. We just thought we'd like to see in print what everyone is applying for.)"

Here's the way I got it but I'm not sure if it's right—
A Donegal Springs couple had gone out for the evening, and after having made it a rather long evening, upon arriving home, and not wanting to light any lights and awaken the children . . . especially the canary . . . the Mrs. sneaked quietly over to the cage and covered the bird. — Next morning when she uncovered the cage the door was open and the bird gone — after a few worried moments the canary was found perched on a what-not shelf. — and the family part about it, had been there when the cage was covered the night before. —
The next time your phone isn't working and the man comes to fix it ask him about it.

Aluminum Co. Training Classes Being Conducted

Aluminum Company of America's Lancaster Works training program for technical employees is now being conducted at the plant site.

Once the grading and excavation work at the plant site, on the Fruitville Pike, Lancaster, was well underway, two training buildings began taking shape on the site late in April. Each of the two buildings—12 feet high at the eaves—is 100 feet long and 40 feet wide, with a floor space of 4,000 square feet apiece.

The training buildings each have a class room for instruction in the use of gauges and testing equipment, blue print reading, mathematic and related courses. Over 40 pieces of shop equipment such as automatic screw machines, nail headers, rivet headers, thread rollers, lathes and presses will be used in the training.

These buildings will be used for training purposes for some time after production gets underway in the main plant. Eventually, they will be used as warehouses.

The actual training program for technical employees got underway June 29. The program is designed to train a selected group to set up and operate automatic screw, nail and rivet machines. A limited number of tool room mechanics and repairmen will also be trained.

Director of training is Edmond Cotton, formerly of the Edgewater, N. J. operations, who will be assisted by a staff of seven.

First to enroll in the training program are three Lancaster County men: Bernard Vollenweider of Eggertsville, who will study the operation of automatic screw machines; Harry Deisley of Lancaster, who will work on fastener machines, and Edgar Ross of Peach Bottom, who will study rivet department operations.

The hiring of these men and others have joined the training squad and additional employees will be hired as full time employees at a rate of approximately five per week over a three month period. Approximately 70 will be given technical training for six months in fundamentals in the use and operation of the various machines. Upon completion of this basic course, they will receive continued instruction for higher skills.

One instrument used in testing skills of potential technicians is an industrial vision testing machine to test employees speed of seeing, depth perception and gauge reading.

Making Study Of Heart Patients As Drivers

A special committee of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, meeting Friday in Pittsburgh, will try to decide just what a physician should do to prevent a patient with heart trouble from driving a motor vehicle.

Dr. Constantine P. Faller, Harrisburg physician, is chairman of the special sub-committee of the state society's board of trustees—a group named nearly 3 years ago. He discloses that he has worked up case histories of drivers with heart ailments who have died behind the wheel in traffic accidents.

"The doctors who had attended these people at one time or other, and had knowledge of their physical conditions," Dr. Faller explains "were asked whether or not their patients ought to have been driving. In addition, the physicians were asked to state what should be done to keep such tragedies from happening.

From a study of the answers to these numerous inquiries, the chairman believes his committee will be able to come up with a definite recommendation to the state-wide membership as to a doctor's best procedure when he is confronted with heart trouble in one of his patients.

"Certain heart conditions make it unwise for the patient to operate a motor vehicle, and his physician is best qualified to recognize such a case," Dr. Faller points out. "It is a doctor's duty to see to it—in some way—that patients with dangerous heart ailments do not drive."

The contemplated action meets with strong endorsement from the Commonwealth's top traffic safety expert, T. Elmer Franseau, Director of the Bureau of Safety, whose accident record section provided Dr. Faller with data upon which the case histories could be built, declares that any such effort by Pennsylvania's physicians would be a positive step toward greater safety.

"I have felt for a long time that some safeguard was necessary. Certainly the person driving along today's perilous highways with a serious heart condition is a menace to himself, to those riding with him, and to other motorists. Any control our doctors can exert over this situation is bound to save lives."

Besides Dr. Faller, the committee consists of Dr. Luther I. Fisher, of Bethlehem; Dr. William G. Leaman, of Philadelphia; Dr. William L. Muddins, of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Wood H. Wincey, of Johnstown.

The meeting is to be held at noon in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
