Early Reporting
Of Disabled
Persons Urged

A large number of disabled Pennsylvania citizens, including many from the Harrisburg District, who required rehabilitative services so they could accept gainful employment were referred to the State Bureau of Rehabilitation during the past fiscal year, it was reported today.
During the 1952-53 twelve month period 8,713 new cases were reported to the Bureau from throughout the State, including 671 in the Harrisburg District, according to Roy K. Zinn, District Manager.
As many as 34 different groups and agencies referred the cases, according to Zinn. On a state-wide basis the most encouraging trend was the increased number of handicapped individuals who came from co-operating agencies in allied fields.
Many of the agencies who referred cases to the bureau generally are informed promptly of persons whose disabilities will handicap them permanently, he added. This is especially important because if injured persons are referred to the bureau as soon as possible after the disablement occurs, rehabilitation can be started immediately when there is more likelihood it will culminate in success. These agencies include health organizations, hospitals, clinics, doctors, crippled children societies, schools and sanatoria.

In explaining eligibility for the bureau's services, Zinn said that any handicapped individual 16 years of age or over and a resident of Pennsylvania, who has a disability which constitutes an employment handicap, can apply for rehabilitation.
Residents who sustain disability through injury, accident, congenital causes, or disease, may be considered eligible provided they can be made employable.
It was pointed out by Zinn that these disabled persons can be rehabilitated and placed into gainful jobs at considerably less cost than required to maintain them on public assistance for one year. Last year alone through rehabilitation 691 cases were removed from the Commonwealth's public assistance rolls. It cost the commonwealth

Local Firm Chosen
To Manufacture Well Known Calf Ration

Red Top Feed & Grain Company, Mount Joy, has been selected by the Blatchford Calf Meal Company of Waukegan, Ill., to make one of its feeds.
The Illinois company, which has been in the business of raising calves for the past 153 years recently scouted this area to find a firm that could make one of its products. Advantages would be a fresher feed and a considerable savings in freight, it was pointed out.
The Blatchford company checked very closely the equipment and stock of ingredients of Red Top and found them to be among the best. As a result Red Top will be the sole manufacturer of Blatchford's Calfadine, a complete ration for calves, in this area.
When in need of Printing, (anything) kindly remember the Bulletin $1,941 to maintain each one of these 691 cases on relief rolls for only one year while the expenditure was only $224 each to rehabilitate and place them in gainful jobs.
