"SOIL IS SACRED"

Our American forebearers were people of the land. They lived close to the soil. They understood the miracles of nature and her inexorable laws. They held a deep religious faith that supported them in adversity to an extent beyond the comprehension of many living in the carbon-monoxide fumes of cities.

Those who drive through the countryside nowadays profaning the beauties of nature by tossing beer bottles and papers along the roadside and who think of necessities solely in terms of the nearest store counter or show window, would do well to spend a few minutes contemplating the words of Rev. Louis Deuster of Muenster, Texas: "In modern life, we too need a reasonable abundance of the good things of the earth in order to carry out a proper religious program for families and communities. That is why it is not saying too much to declare that 'soil is sacred.' The things we reap from the soil become our means of developing our churches, our schools, our community resources. Without these, our children could not be properly brought into the world, reared, and educated. Christianity would fail of a great part of its mission if material resources in due abundance were lacking."

"We therefore please God when we take good care of the soil and its resources entrusted to us . . ."

ON BALANCED BUDGET

More and more people seem to be coming to the conclusion that one of the best ways to help balance the budget is to start reducing the national debt, and to make eventual tax reduction for enterprise and individuals possible, is to get the government out of commercial business. Former Defense Mobilizer Wilson started the ball rolling months ago, in a speech that aroused great national interest. Herbert Hoover advocated a similar policy in a nationally broadcast major address, in which he stressed the case for disposing of government-owned electric power plants and related facilities. Bills have been introduced in Congress proposing studies and investigations to find ways of returning government commercial operations to private ownership, and to protect the public's investment in them. A House sub-committee is studying federal competition with private business and the resultant loss of tax revenues.

As interesting recent development is found in a plan offered by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. It points out that taxes have now reached the point of diminishing return, and that government borrowing to cover deficits would create still more inflation. It implements these views with a recital of facts. Federal taxes are now at an all-time high, and have actually increased 3,000 per cent since 1933. Taxes are hampering industrial growth—almost 60 per cent of all corporate profits now wind up in the tax collectors' tills. The U. S. consumer's tax bill—federal, state and local—is greater than his food bill. Inflation, which is primarily the result of increasing the money supply in relation to the supply of goods, has made heavy inroads into the living standards of many and the savings of all. The Chamber praises the recent Treasury policy of increasing interest rates as an anti-inflationary measure but believes that it will be ineffective without a balanced budget. Therefore, the plan states, "Like any other business or organization which has been over-extended through bad management and extravagant spending, the new management must liquidate the overextended operations."

It goes on to point out that government is competing with private business in some 100 separate fields of activity. These include power and aluminum plants, synthetic rubber factories, all kinds of lending agencies, hemp plantations, railroads, housing, fertilizer and synthetic gasoline and sugar factories, etc., etc. Their combined assets are estimated at $30,000,000,000. They are exempt from all federal taxes.

The Chamber thinks that many of these government-owned businesses would sell readily to private enterprise—some at figures above their original cost. Others would take considerable time to dispose of, because of various complications—in such cases, says the Chamber, their operations should be up on a strictly self-supporting basis that would eliminate tax losses and further drains on the Treasury. The larger part of the liquidation, it forecasts, could be accomplished within six or seven years.

In conclusion, the Cleveland Chamber points to four ways in which the sales of these businesses would benefit the public. First, proceeds would assist in balancing the budget and reducing the debt. Second, they would make possible tax reduction in the future. Third, they would provide new sources of tax revenue, running into very large sums. Fourth, their disposal would eliminate the need for appropriating money year after year to meet their operating and expansion costs.

OWL LAFFS

BY A WISE OWL

It won't be too long now until all you lucky vacation takers will bemoan the fact that Labor Day is here, the last vacation holiday of the summer and then you've got to settle down to work for the winter — — — Now, me, I'll never mind it. Not one bit. — — — I never get a vacation, so I don't know any better.

I was invited out for bridge last night and when I arrived the naughty little boy was shut up in the clothes closet. After awhile his stern but anxious mother opened the door and said, "You're so quiet, Sammy, what are you doing?"

From the corner came the cool reply, "I thipt on your new hat and your dress and your that-in-t-hlipperth, and now I'm waitin' for more thpit!" — — So there!

"Cappy" Mamma says: "Marriage isn't a lottery, because in a lottery, you can win once in a while!"

Up at Florin the other day when Jonas Linart's parakeet got loose and was roaming around the floor of his home, "Guinea" Haines mistook it for a rat, and gave chase — — — but when the parakeet flew off the floor, "Guinea" seemed quite surprised — — — it was the first time he ever saw a rat with wings.

Russ Sumpman and wife took a trip to New England states and since they're back they can't get over the sanitary dogs they have in the maple sugar district of Vermont. There's shiny tin buckets hanging on all the trees.

A woman hurried down a church aisle here on Sunday just as the offertory plate was being passed. She picked a penny from her purse and dropped it on the plate—then she sat down.

Just as the usher with the plate was reaching the last row of pews, the woman came rushing back up the aisle. She reached for the plate and took a penny from it. The usher grabbed her by the arm.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "what was the point of rushing in, dropping a penny on the plate, then removing it from the plate and rushing out?"

"Wrong church," she explained.

Overheard on a bus to E-town — — — "Daddy, did grandpa spank you when you were a little boy?"

"He sure did!"

"And did great-grandpa spank grandpa when he was a little boy?"

"He certain-y did!"

"Well, don't you think that with a little cooperation from me we can over-come this inherited sadism?"

"Heredity can be an awful thing. A fellow could give it to his whole family!"

If any of you guys want a few tips on good-housekeeping ask Postmaster Zerpey, — — — He learned quite a bit the past two weeks, while his wife was on vacation.

Jim Markley told me "A debtor is a man who owes money . . . a creditor is a man who thinks he's going to get it back!"

What's the matter, "Shreve", don't you do anything dumb anymore? I haven't seen your name in this column for several weeks! — — — Guess I'll have to have a talk with "Dadley", he may know something.

"Young man, does your mother know you're smoking?" asked a Barbara Street lady of a youth in front of the bank.

"Madam, does your husband know you speak to strange men on the street?" the boy countered.

"Has gooseberries got legs?" a little fellow asked on his first camping trip.

"No," answered his counsellor.

"Then I just ate a fieldmouse," the boy exclaimed.

Drove out the Back Run last night and came upon a flourishing garden on a flat bed truck. I stopped and curiously asked the farmer what it meant. He explained: "My government agent advised me to truck farm."
