Each year conference is held for the high school library assistants from all the schools over Southeastern Penna. This year it was held Nov. 6, at the Millersville State Teachers College, and was the seventh such affair held. The name of the organization is The Student Library Association of Pennsylvania, Southeastern District. The entertainment for the program was provided by Manheim Central High School. A business meeting was held at which student officers presided, headed by Shirley Wade, as President, a Mount Joy senior. Then there was a speaker and also a tour of the new building.

The officers of this group are picked as follows: Each group from the schools elect two people to go to an executive meeting, which is held sometime each spring. Then an executive committee selects officers for the whole group.

This past Tuesday, the students of Mount Joy high school were honored when they heard an interesting speech about the United Nations, given by Prof. Frederick S. Klein, of the history department of Franklin & Marshall College. He pointed out what his first impressions of the United Nations were, and how, after going there several times that his opinions were changed some each time. The dates of Nov. 12 and 13 will long be a happy memory for the Juniors. Those are the dates that they will take their trip to Washington, D. C. and of course all the National Shrines that they have so often read about. George Broske, Homer Schoener and Mrs. Sadie Brooks will accompany the class.

The eighth grade class, in conjunction with their studies of the Revolutionary War, will go and visit the site of the winter quarters of Washington's troops at Valley Forge Nov. 12, Thursday. I'm sure they will find this trip most interesting and receive from it a far better understanding of the history of this particular war.

Nov. 13, the Lancaster Automobile Club will put on a Safety program for the students of the school. This will certainly put everybody more on the alert.
