Light's Diamond Jubilee Farm Open To Public

The gates to John Stamy's "Light's Diamond Jubilee Farm" in Cumberland county, were thrown open last Thursday to more than 300 visitors, who came to examine what is believed to be the world's most completely electrified farm. Farm Journal and the Pennsylvania Power & Light Company, co-sponsors of the farm, were hosts in the special field day ceremonies.

As part of a program following an inspection of the farm, Charles E. Oakes, PP&L president, called the Stamy farm the "epitome of farm progress". It represents, he said, the kind of farm progress necessary if the farmer is to continue "to produce more food for more people on appreciably the same acreage".

The Pennsylvania Power and Light Company president paid tribute to both the farm press and manufacturers of farm equipment for the part they had played in the progress of American agriculture.

The farm press, Mr. Oakes said, has brought to the individual farmer the accumulative knowledge of his farm brothers and has made the general public aware of the farmer's problem as well as his contribution to our national welfare. He lauded the equipment manufacturers for their extensive research into the problems of the farm and for the machines that grow out of that research.

The utility president recalled that one of the first farms to be supplied with electricity in the world was in the territory now served by PP&L. The utility head said that in the launching of PP&L's rural electrification program, the company had but 300 farm customers. This has swelled to an amazing 35,000 customers today, said Mr. Oakes and electricity is available to every occupied farm and rural dwelling in PP&L's service area.

Wheeler MacMillan, Editor-in-chief of Farm Journal, served as master of ceremonies. MacMillan pointed out that there is real potential in agriculture "for men with skill and courage who know how to use modern tools".

The Farm Journal editor also introduced Ralph Beard, Vice President of Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Company and chairman of the National Electrical Mfg. Association, as well as J. B. McCurley, chief of Rural Electrification Administration's operating division.

Ralph Beard recalled that no one could foresee the alternate power that might be used by the farmer for greater economy and better living. Electrical farming and processing has helped America gain its enviable position as the most progressive farming nation in the world.

Mr. McCurley outlined the growth of electricity on the farm and the part that his organization has played in that progress in combination with electric power companies and other groups.

Luncheon was served by the Ladies of the Big Spring Presbyterian Church of which the John Stamy's family is a member.

Benediction was offered by Rev. Ralph B. Snyder, Pastor of the Big Spring Church.

BABIES BETTER PROTECTED

Babies under six months of age may not be wholly immune, but they are better protected against polio than older children because they have as many antibodies in their blood as their mothers, and because they are seldom exposed to the virus.

Slow Down And Live Drive Getting Results

Figures from the 24 Northeastern and Southern states participating in the unprecedented 1954 summertime highway safety campaign, Slow Down and Live, show an over-all reduction of 64 per cent in traffic deaths for the month of July this year as compared with the same month last year, it was announced today by the secretaries of the two groups of states.

Highway deaths in the region, which includes every state from Maine to Texas, totaled 1,233 this July. Last year's figure was 1,376 for the month.

The 11 Northeastern states taking part in the safety move report an over-all drop of 10.2 percent below the 1953 July level. The 13 Southern states report a drop of four percent. For the 24-state area the reduction represents a saving of 88 lives in the month.
