bia and Ashenfelter made one from the field. After 4½ minutes of the first quarter, with Donegal leading 7 to 1, the Crimson Tide called for time. Two buckets by Kauffman and one by Gerfin, knotted the score at 7-7. Kugle sunk one from the foul circle, with Jim Grove following with two and Heistand with one. Betrone scored a foul and Gerfin a two pointer for Columbia, to make the score 15 to 10.

In the second period, Donegal outscored Columbia again, with Ashenfelter, Metzler, Grove and Kugle scoring for the Indians, and Carey scoring for Coach Elmer Kreiser's team.

In the third period, Donegal scored 17 points, with Metzler hitting for eight straight, and Columbia scored 12 points to make the score 50-36 going in to the last period. In this period, Columbia outscored the Green and White, 17 to 13, with Carey and Kauffman outscoring Kugle, Grove and Metzler. Final score 63-53.

Metzler was leading scorer for Donegal with 19 points, followed by Kugle with 15, and Grove 14. Big Jay controlled both backboards, being ably assisted by Kugle and Grove. Ashenfelter and Heistand were the standouts on defense. Tuesday was the first time this year the starting five played the entire game.

In congratulating Coach Depoe after the game, he said, "the boys deserve all the credit, they hustled all the way and took advantage of all the breaks. Coach Kreiser has a fine team, and his boys gave us a battle all the way."

Coach Marsh Gemberling's JV's lost the opening game to Columbia by the score of 42-31, with the JV's fighting all the way, but were unable to cope with Columbia's height.

Under The Basket

The Mount Joy Merchants won their third game in a row as they defeated a good Lehigh team 70 to 57.

With Zimmerman sick and Bowman working, the locals continued their winning ways by coming through despite this handicap.

It was strictly a team victory as each fellow contributed points toward the win. Jim Menninger led the way with 15 points towards the win. Bob Flick came through in the final quarter with three of his four goals.

Playing a fast moving game, the locals continued their winning ways as they won their fourth straight game by defeating Capp's Cafe 87 to 68.

B. Zimmerman, H. Hershey and Hen Klugh came through with impressive scoring with 28, 24 and 19 points respectively.

With Zimmerman scoring on his favorite jump shot and Hen Klugh hitting from the side and pivot, this caused the defense to guard these two players more closely allowing Hershey more freedom under the basket. The Merchants passed repeatedly to Hershey who threw in ten goals.

P. P. & L. Shareowners Vote In Favor Of Merger

Shareowners of Pennsylvania Power & Light Company, at a special meeting in the Company's Allentown office, yesterday afternoon voted overwhelmingly in favor of proposals to merge The Scranton Electric Company and Pennsylvania Water and Power Company into Pennsylvania Power & Light Company. Earlier in the day at separate morning meetings, the shareholders of both Scranton and Penn Water approved similar proposals by large majorities.

Also as a result of yesterday's meeting, PP&L will, subject to approval by necessary regulatory authorities, reopen its previously-expired Scranton exchange plan and to make this possible PP&L's shareowners accordingly took action necessary to make the required shares of its stocks available for exchange. Under this reopening, the holders of the approximately 9% of the Scranton shares not yet exchanged will have another opportunity to convert their shares to PP&L stock on the same basis as the original plan. Chas. E. Oakes, PP&L president, pointed out that the move comes as a result of numerous requests from among the remaining Scranton shareowners for a second-round opportunity to take advantage of the exchange offer.

P. P. & L. shareowners also voted to increase the Company's authorized capital stock by 1,214,924 shares of common stock and 257,462 shares of series preferred stock and approved a proposal to increase the authorized indebtedness of the Company by $100,000,000. While the Company has no present plans for issuance of this stock, or for the increase of its debt securities other than those required to carry out the mergers, the moves were made to provide for future expansion of the Company's service facilities in anticipation of continually-increasing customer power requirements.

Penna. Game Commission Weekly Letter

By now most hunters have cleaned, oiled and stored their sporting guns.

The situation is different in the case of fur takers. The present mink season does not end until noon, Jan. 1, 1955. The one for muskrats closes at noon, on Feb. 1. Tens of thousands of men, boys and some of the feminine sex trap for fur-bearers in Pennsylvania every fall and winter.

In the current hunting license period raccoons, skunks and opossums may be taken in unlimited numbers. This winter's three-week beaver season does not start until Feb. 14, 1955. Foxes and weasels, classed as predators, may be trapped any time.

Today's prices for wild-caught fur are so low, compared to those 20 to 30 years ago, trapping has fallen off markedly. At one time the pelt of a prime red fox brought the trapper $20 or more. Now its skin is worthless or nearly so. A blanket (large) beaver hide that sold for $60 to $80 in 1945 sold last winter for $12 to $15. A wild-caught mink pelt listed at $12 to $16 this season netted the trapper $25 to $30 a few years ago.

Today's prices on large, prime pelts not already mentioned are about as follows: weasel, $1.25; black skunk, $1; muskrat, $1.00; muskrat, $1.00; opossum, $1.50; raccoon, $1. Not a high return when the labor involved and the cost of equipment are considered.

But trappers who yearn for the "good old days" should not dream back too many years. In 1886 a Philadelphia fur house issued a pelt price most of which looks hardly encouraging, even when the difference in dollar value, then and now, is considered. These items were taken from the list: a fisher (now extinct in Pennsylvania) brought 3 to $7, the same as an otter skin; a mink hide was bought for 20c to 60c; one from a wild cat was worth 25c, a house cat 10c; a rabbit skin was valued at 1c to 2c; the pelt of a "winter-killed" muskrat brought 10c to 15c; and that of the raccoon 10c to 65c.

Today's raw fur prices are not so low but that many trappers continue to run their lines, and wild-caught furs net a tidy sum for many a trapper in this state. Also, the trade in pelts and the money garnered by tanners and manufacturers of fur garments eventually has an economic effect of considerable importance to many people.

Pheasant's Rare Taste Causes Excitement
William Shaver, a game protector living at Mainland, Montgomery County, reports: "On November 9, 1954, an uncle visited my home. That day he hunted for a few hours and shot two cock pheasants. The evening meal over he started cleaning his birds in the sink, with the help of my mother-in-law."

"Suddenly the lady shrieked and dropped one of the pheasants. In cutting the craw open she found a snake curled up inside it. The cause of the excitement was a dead, 11-inch garter snake."

"From now on," said Shaver, "I shall probably have to clean any pheasant I bag, because cooperation from my wife or mother-in-law is hardly expected."

Adequate Protection Spells More Rabbits

Game Protector Paul H. Glenn, Adams County, seems to be making a double-barreled suggestion in the following, Says Glenn: "Last November it was my privilege to spend a few hours hunting rabbits on a farm near Gettysburg. I was interested in the owner's method of improving his shooting possibilities. The man hunts and traps foxes. The bounty he received from the hides in recent years was put to good use. With it he bought drainage tile and dug it in on different localities on his farms. The tiles furnished excellent escape cover and safe breeding spots for cottontails. In two or three hours we saw 17 rabbits and bagged 6. On the last day of the 1954 season the many rabbits observed on the area promised adequate brood stock for next year's crop."
