Collar the Clock!

PUTTING a collar on the average kitchen timepiece will brighten up the clock wall and make it both attractive and more useful.

Lay the clock on a piece of paper and trace its outline. Transfer the drawing, by means of carbon paper, to a panel of Masonite Tempered Presdwood one eighth inch thick. The material should be large enough to allow for the sawing of a "collar" to fit around the clock.

The center of the "collar" may be cut out with a coping or similar-type saw. To get the blade started, insert it in a hole bored near and inside the line marking the outline of the clock.

Shape of the clock will determine whether the outer edge of the "collar" is round, square or hexagonal. The distance between the clock and the outer edge of the Presdwood should range from four to six inches, depending on the size of the clock and the amount of wall space available.

Friction ordinarily will keep the "collar" in position, flat against the wall at the back of the clock, but if the sawing has been irregular and the collar is loose, insert small pieces of wood to take up the slack.

Arranged in clockwise order near the clock's new border may be the leaves from a small plant.

The ingenious homemaker can create the clock in various ways.

Your Health

Comes now cold mornings and carbon monoxide. More sudden deaths are caused by carbon monoxide poisoning than by any other chemical agent.

Exposure to carbon monoxide occurs in the home through leaks in gas fittings. Carbon monoxide is present also when there is imperfect combustion in stoves and furnaces improperly constructed or operated. A great many deaths are caused by the carbon monoxide from exhaust gas of automobiles.

Persons, usually males, work on automobiles in closed garages and the place gets saturated with gas from the running motor.

People trying to keep warm while sitting in an automobile keep the motor running and the windows tightly closed as carbon monoxide gas seeps into the car and kills.

Carbon monoxide is a treacherous gas for it is non-irritating, colorless, tasteless, and in moderate concentrations, odorless. This insidious gas prevents oxygen from properly uniting with the blood, there is oxygen starvation and respiratory failure, causing death.

While headache is usually the first symptom of carbon monoxide poisoning, there is also a progressive muscular weakness without loss of consciousness. The memory becomes foggy and the victim passes into a sort of oblivion of mind from which he may emerge or from which he may go into coma and death. A victim of carbon monoxide poisoning should have immediate artificial respiration of the prone-pressure type, and as soon as possible an administration of pure oxygen with an inhalator as the best possible treatment.

Precaution is the answer to the problem of gas poisoning. Persons should not retire at night with gas heating appliances burning in poorly ventilated rooms. A garage or door should be open when the automobile motor is running. And if we sit in the car out-of-doors and run the motor, let's open the window.
