Angus Breeders To Hold Sale

The Blacks come back to the Farm Show building here next week when state Angus breeders hold their first sale of the year in Pennsylvania.

Scott L. French, fieldman-secretary of the Pennsylvania Aberdeen Angus Breeders Association, announced today that the third annual Brandywine Cow and Calf Sale will be held Wednesday, March 30, in the Small Area. Sale time is 1 p. m. It is sponsored by the Brandywine Angus Breeders, Inc., in cooperation with the state Angus Association.

Fifty-four registered Angus cows will sell, French said. All will either have calves at their side, or will be well along in calf.

According to the Angus fieldman, "many of the lots will be three-in-one combinations." He explained these animals will be sold as individuals but will actually have calves at their side and be rebred to some of the best bulls in Pennsylvania.

"This sale is designed for the person planning to start a beef herd," French said. He pointed out that the cows were screened by a committee of veteran livestockmen and are sound breeders, capable of producing good, healthy calves."

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Somerfield, 618 Madison St., Lancaster, announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann, to Donald S. Leakway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian S. Leakway, 137 North Market Street, Mount Joy.

Miss Somerfield is employed in the stenographic department of the Armstrong Cork Company. Her fiancé is serving with the U. S. Navy and is now stationed at Newport, R. I.

State Bureau Reports Rehabilitation Of Cardiac Patients

The State Bureau of Rehabilitation today reported that 217 Commonwealth residents afflicted with cardiac conditions were retrained and given proper medical services so they could be placed into gainful employment during the past year.

John R. Torquato, Secretary of Labor and Industry and Executive Officer of the State Board of Vocational Education for rehabilitation, said this achievement was especially noteworthy and encouraging because when the 217 cases were accepted for services nearly all were unable to work and only a few had part-time employment.

Pointing out that the 217 persons comprise 7.2 per cent of the total cases rehabilitated by the Bureau last year, Torquato added that under his agency's expanding program "we will make an increasingly number of handicapped persons employable so they will not be dependent upon public aid and at the same time will be taking an active part in community life."

"In retraining and preparing persons with heart conditions for gainful employment," Torquato said, "the Bureau works closely with a physician of the individuals' own selection to make certain that their physical conditions are not aggravated in any manner."

John J. Gordon, Manager of the Bureau's Harrisburg District, pointed out that a careful medical examination of the cardiac condition and general evaluation is made by a heart specialist. From this the Bureau obtains an idea of the type of employment for which the individual can be prepared. Prescribed treatment, counseling and guidance are offered and a rehabilitation plan is proposed under strict medical supervision.

Throughout the training the individual is checked carefully to make certain no additional damage is done to the heart and that activities are not too strenuous for the prevailing physical limitations. When the retraining is completed and placement is decided upon, medical authorities are consulted again to make certain the physical capacity of the client is suitable for the job selected.

Among the 217 cardiac cases rehabilitated during the past year there were 18 in the Harrisburg District.

The average age of these persons accepted for the Bureau's services was 32 years. There were 82 individuals under 21 years of age; 39 in the age group of 21 to 29 years; 30 from 30 to 39 years; 31 from 40 to 49 years; 28 from 50 to 59 years; and 7 from 60 to 69 years. Of the entire group 121 were single persons, 83 married and 13 other. When disabled with heart trouble the average age of the group was 20 years.

While 114 persons in the group completed four years of high school, the average individual had only a tenth grade education; 61 never had worked in their lives, 62 had substantial employment previously and 94 had unsubstantial or part-time jobs. When accepted for training by the Bureau only 15 were wage earners, 26 were on relief rolls, none was receiving unemployment compensation, four were receiving types of insurance benefits, 130 were dependant on their families while the remaining were living from their savings or receiving aid from other sources.

Following their placement into gainful, suitable jobs, they earned an average of $42.27 a week. It cost the Bureau an average of $470 per person to retrain and place these individuals into gainful employment, thus taking them from various assistance and compensation rolls and making them self-supporting taxpayers.
