EASY EATING—Barbecuing chicken at home parties is all the more pleasant when the Lancaster County poultry queen does the serving and the chicken cooking champion supervises the preparation—but the absence of these young ladies is no reason for not enjoying the same kind of "easy eating" this summer. Miss Arlene Hubley, left, of Silver Spring, and Mrs. Herbert Denlinger, of Lancaster, are pictured in a pre-season warm-up for a summer of backyard barbecues. The easy ways for you are to "do-it-yourself" for family meals, neighborhood parties or club functions will be demonstrated Saturday, June 4, at Litz Springs Park. And on the same day you'll have Lancaster County Poultrymen on hand to do it for you—serve you tender, juicy barbecued chicken with all the trimmings at their fifth annual broiler barbecue.

Lancaster County Poultry Industry Goal Is 'Easy Eating'

"Easy eating for everyone" is the goal of Lancaster County's booming multi-million dollar poultry industry and the "chicken in every pot" theme of the depression-ridden 30's has been given modern dress.

In the 1955 mode of outdoor living the ultimate in relaxation is found in the outdoor barbecue pit.

And the easily-followed path to this way of life will be mapped for all to see on Saturday, June 4, at the fifth annual Lancaster County Broiler Barbecue.

A demonstration pit, showing how to "do-it-yourself" at home, will be a featured attraction when an expected crowd of 7,500 gathers at Litz Springs Park to enjoy barbecued chicken with all the trimmings.

The Lancaster barbecue has been the most successful of these public events in Pennsylvania and the Garden Spot's poultry farmers and allied industry men want to share the secrets of this success—for others to enjoy barbecued chicken at family gatherings, neighborhood parties, and church or club functions.

The beautiful things of nature make every one light hearted in May. In that beauty, God reminds us, "Lift up your eyes on high, and behold who hath created these things...
