Swimming Safety Measures Urged

"The swimming season is under way and extra precautions should be taken to insure safety in swimming and other water sports," reminds V. A. Martin, state advisor in agricultural education and member of the Pennsylvania Rural Safety Council.

Martin emphasized that 30 rural folks lost their lives by drowning in the state during the past four years, of which more than half were in farm ponds. He recommended these safety measures to reduce the needless loss of life:

1. Make a thorough investigation regarding the safety of swimming facilities.

2. Don't swim alone. Never go into the water when tired, overheated, or immediately after eating.

3. Don't overload a boat. There may be seats for more people than the boat will carry.

4. Always step into the center of the boat - never jump; never stand up in a boat; never permit horseplay.

5. Old tubs, boilers, jars, or other containers should not be left around the farmstead. It takes as little as two inches of water to drown an infant.

Protect stock watering tanks. If possible, fence them off or cover them. If old bath tubs are used as waterers, remember a child can lose balance more easily in a tub than in a regular watering trough.

7. Never swim in polluted water.
