FARMERS URGED TO CUT ACCIDENTS

Harrisburg - (PNS) - With farm activities throughout Pennsylvania now in full seasonal stride, farmers of the Keystone State this week were cautioned to be doubly on their guard against accidents on the farm.

"Each individual farm worker is responsible if he gets involved in an accident through carelessness, haste, indifference or thoughtlessness, the most common causes for farm accidents," commented Secretary of Agriculture William L. Hennig.

He asserted that farm workers should know how to prevent accidents - and also know what to do should one occur. He said he himself has handled horses, cattle, swine and sheep practically all his life "but I never take a chance with any of them."

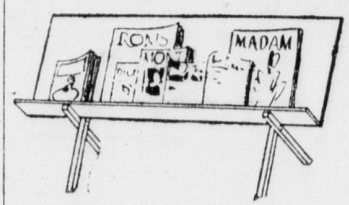

He admitted to what he termed "a deep respect" for animal nature be it good or bad, declaring that when it is anticipated that it might be bad, actions should be governed accordingly.

"There is no such thing as a good tempered bull," he said. "Too often we have heard that a so-called gentle bull has gone on a rampage for no apparent reason and crippled or killed one or more persons. All animals should be approached with care and a friendly word."

Although the extent of agricultural acres is limited Fulton County has fertile soil and produces good crops. - PNS

How-to: Magazine Rack
ILLUSTRATED here is a simply-made but practical magazine rack for the living room or porch. The only parts needed are two pieces of Masonite Tempered Duolux, a 1/4" hardboard which is smooth on both sides, and some lumber 1" square. Dimensions of the trough may be 30 inches long, with the front panel 4 inches wide and the back panel 14 inches wide. As shown, the bottoms of the wood legs are angled so they'll stand flat on the floor. Flat-headed screws are used to fasten the hardboard to the legs. The heads should be countersunk and the holes then filled with wood putty. Screws are inserted through drilled holes in the hardboard and driven into the wood. The legs, where they join, are fastened with screws. Paint the ensemble in attractive colors, first using a primer.
