SERIOUS PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED AT STATE FARM SHOW

Harrisburg -PNS- Serious problems confronting Pennsylvania farmers will come up for serious discussion under plans now being made by some thirty statewide farm organizations when they meet here for the 1956 Farm Show in January.

Usually up to 10,000 farmers from all over the state attend these meetings which for the most part of an educational nature exchange of mutual problems.

Pennsylvania News Service learned this week that agricultural economists are predicting high production costs and lower prices for farm products in 1956 than in 1955.

Commented a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission:

"In light of this Farm Show meetings will take on added significance and we anticipate that all sessions will be productive and beneficial in greater degree than ever before, in the year ahead."

Most of the matters scheduled for discussion cover the field of greater efficiency in the crop and livestock production. Special attention is expected to be given to such critical items as farm labor, milk production costs, livestock and poultry disease control, grass-land farming, crop improvement, plant insects and pests, potato growing and a host of others.

The Pennsylvania Story:

Tangled Financial Mess Increasing Worry At Capital

By MASON DENISON
Pennsylvania News Service

Harrisburg - Back in the blow-hard month of March we offered the comment in this column that members of Pennsylvania's Legislature would do well to keep their long underwear in their lockers here in Harrisburg inasmuch as they would still be here when the wintry winds would begin to blow again.

That projection was made, we admit with somewhat pardonable pride, at a time when the general chant among lawmakers and pundits themselves was:

"Home in June when the roses are in bloom."

Well, as a matter of historical and botanical accuracy, the roses bloomed alright - but the lads and lasses of the Legislature weren't there to see them. In fact they'll be fortunate indeed to be home in time to shovel snow.

Be that as it may, at the time we made this prognostication in March, a somewhat ebullient Democratic lawmaker of note approached the writer following publication of the prophesy, and with cigar ash-cluttered vest said loud and clear:

"LOOK here son, I don't know where you get that stuff about being here until winter comes. Why that's absurd. We'll be out of here in another couple of months."

We allowed as how he just might be right, noting at the same time that our prediction was merely a guesstimate based on putting two and two together after having covered this sort of activity as a newsman for some 17 years.

Anyway we left it with the threat that if the Legislature went home in June I would buy his lunch (not to exceed 60 cents) while if it lasted into the fall months, I would be his guest.

Well, again to come to the point - if this newsman had to rely on that lunch to keep starvation away, there certainly would be one emaciated reporter on Capitol Hill these days.

Nevertheless it does illustrate the unexpected but now accepted turn of events things have taken legislatively insofar as administration forces of Governor Leader are concerned.

Few if any believe that Pennsylvania would be in the tangled mess it is now. Fiscally-speaking the Legislature is no farther ahead than it was during the rose-checked days in January when George M. Leader was sworn in as Governor of the Commonwealth.

School, hospital and general welfare subsidies five months ago glided by the beginning of the new 1955-57 biennium with still no payments in the offing.

Financial hardships are besetting activities on the local level in painfully increasing degree as the financial well continues to be bone dry.

Loud and bitter squawks are coming daily from the counties with no relief in sight until late next months at the earliest, and even this is optimistic. Officials here in the State Capital are really worried—and so are we, as we wonder if we'll ever have that 60-cent dunch.
