

The 1956 De Soto two-door Firelite Sportsman hardtop takes on new length and thrusting grace with its restyled color sweep and upswept rear fenders. This very popular model last year is expected to reach new peaks of public preference—as well as in performance with its 255 h.p. power plant. The entirely new front end, including a striking perforated mesh grille and built-in parking lights, and new rear fenders with built-in turreted taillight assembly, are but a few of the two dozen improvements in the thoroughly changed new line.

NOV. 6-12 NATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK

National Education Week is being observed this week in Donegal High School.

Wednesday at 2:30, the music department presented Alfredo Cavaliere, violinist, in an assembly for the students. Friday and Saturday nights, the Senior class is presenting their play, "Your Face Is Familiar."

Parents are always welcome to visit the school and a special invitation has been extended through the students to their parents to visit the high school this week.

P. P. & L. Will Award Six Scholarships

With continuation of Pennsylvania Power & Light Company's program of educational assistance, six more area young people next year will join the 13 already studying in Central Eastern Pennsylvania colleges on PP&L scholarships, according to Chas. E. Oakes, president of the utility. Continuation of the program, now in its third year, was approved by PP&L's board of directors, Mr. Oakes revealed today.

As in past years, PP&L pays $500 per year toward the tuition of each scholarship winner. In recognition of the fact that tuition payments do not cover the institution's full cost of education the student, an additional $500 is paid to the college or university he or she attends. Competition is open to young people whose parents are residents of the 10,000-square-mile area served by the utility or its subsidiaries, including The Scranton Electric Company. At least one scholarship will be made available to the son or daughter of an employee of the company or its subsidiaries.

In announcing continuation of the program, Mr. Oakes pointed out that as the operation of business and industry become more and more complex, more college-trained young people are needed. Competent young people with college ability, he added, should be encouraged to continue their education. One aim of the PP&L program is to encourage more of Central Eastern Pennsylvania's capable young students, who otherwise might not have the opportunity, to further their schooling.

That part of the PP&L plan that provides assistance to the colleges has been incorporated into the program in order to help maintain the independent colleges. These schools have always held custodianship of the teaching of unobscured freedom of thought and action. In recent years the independent colleges have been experiencing some financial difficulties as a result of the inflationary spiral which threatens their ability to properly carry out their function. Much of this financial difficulty arises because contributions for endowment purposes by individuals, because of taxes, are no longer available in substantial amounts. Under its program of educational assistance, Mr. Oakes said, PP&L joins other progressive American businesses which are stepping in to partially fill the individual benefactor's shoes.

Selection of PP&L scholarship winners will again be in the hands of an independent scholarship awards committee. Serving on the committee for the third consecutive year are Nichol H. Memory, chairman, director of Admissions at Stevens Institute of Technology; Dr. Kenneth H. Condit, dean-emeritus of Princeton university's school of engineering; and Dr. Charles C. Tillinghast, principal-emeritus of Horace Mann school.

Donegal Students Attend Conference

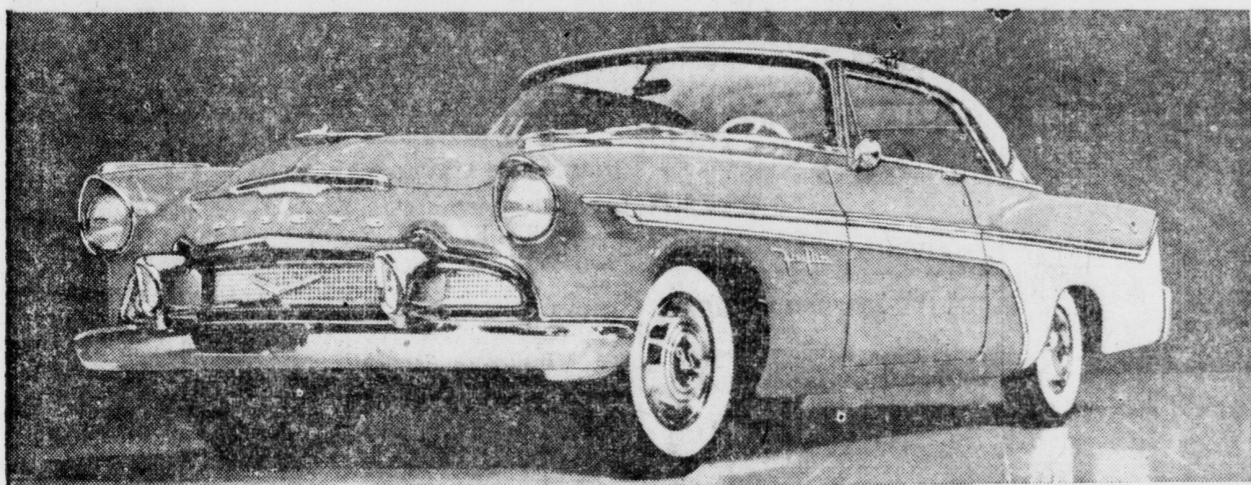

In conjunction with American Education Week, five juniors of Donegal High School, attended a one-day conference at Millersville State Teachers College which was planned by the Future Teachers of America group. The chapter at the college planned the program for high school students who are interested in becoming teachers upon graduation.

Eugene Barton, Assistant secretary of P.S.E.A., was the guest speaker and Dr. Luke Biemsterfer, president of the college, also spoke. The five juniors who were accompanied by Miss Lily Martin of the school's guidance department, were Mary Ann Felty, Sandra Mackinson, Betty Brooks, Benjamin Groff and Leroy Kaylor.

Much of Beaver County's prosperity is due to a combination of industry and agriculture.

SIX SCHOLARSHIPS

AVAILABLE FOR ANY COLLEGIATE COURSE LEADING TO A BACCALAUREATE DEGREE

Pennsylvania Power & Light Company has outlined its program of educational assistance in an informative pamphlet that covers the program from its aims and purposes to the broad details of the scholarships. Young people, parents, educators, business and industrial corporations . . . anybody interested in any way in higher education . . . can obtain a copy of this booklet by stopping at, or writing to, the nearest Company office.

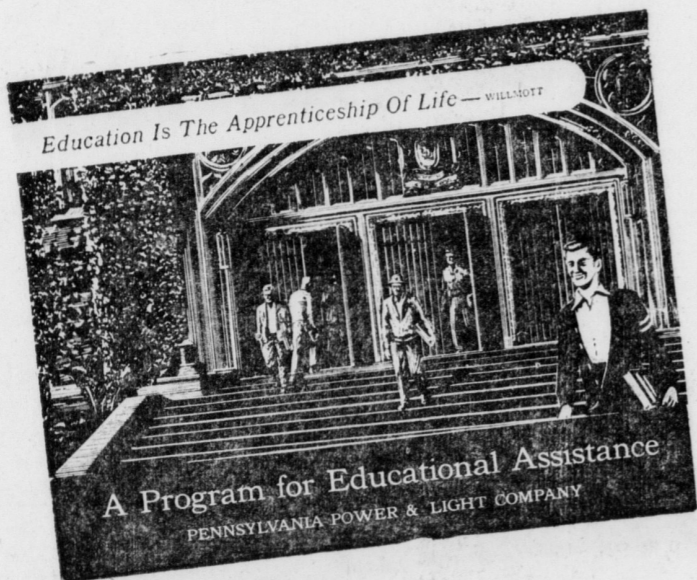

In America, the custodianship for the teaching of the fundamentals of liberty and freedom of thought has always been the inherent function of the independent college. In recent years, the ability of these colleges to continue this vital function has been threatened as a result of the recent inflationary spiral.

PP&L, like other progressive American businesses, has combined its scholarship offer with provisions for extending financial aid to the school.

The scholarships are open to deserving young people who otherwise might not have an opportunity to further their schooling.

Now in its third year, the PP&L program provides for the establishment of six undergraduate scholarships each year for the sons and daughters of residents of the service area who are also customers of the Company or its subsidiaries. At least one of these scholarships is available to the son or daughter of an employee of these companies.

Each winner will have $500 paid toward his or her tuition during the college year. A similar sum is also paid to the college or university which the scholarship winner attends, to be used in whatever manner the institution believes will contribute most toward fulfillment of its educational objectives.
