WHAT'S THE MAN GOING TO DO????

Some time ago he lost his barn by fire, then was able to find temporary stabling facilities but has to be out by April 1st. No time to build a new barn between now and then, so— Alfred H. Sharpless, Avondale, Pa. decided on a DISPENSAL At the Ass'n Sales Pavilion, 6 miles east of Lancaster, Pa. on Route 30.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1955, 12:30 NOON

Our personal opinion is that the herd is just right to sell. It's a young herd and the cows are reaching their peak of productive years. They are in wonderful condition, that's why we particularly invite you to come to this dispersal.

49 HEAD — 31 COWS — 4 BRED AND 14 OPEN HEIFERS
41 VACCINATED. 7 are due in Oct.; 5 in Nov.; 6 in Dec. and Jan. each. T. B. and Bang's Certified!

In sale—3 daughters and 2 granddaughters of Marlboro St. Patrie, which Alfred purchased at the Southbrook Farm Dispersal. They are as good as any sold that day and their sire, "St. Pat" is now at Shadow Brooks, Tunkhannock, Pa. where he will have a wonderful opportunity to transmit the outstanding quality which is apparent in all of his daughters. A "St. Pat" daughter, a bred heifer due next March, sold at the Greenwood Dispersal in September $485.

This herd has come up fast in production the last two or three years, last year averaging just about 400 lbs. fat. In our opinion, could the herd continue another year with the two and three year old ones producing as four and five year olds the average of this herd would be near the top in Chester County.

Prior to the Cattle Sale the following equipment will be sold:—8 can Wilson Milk Cooler with Circulator unit; 20-25 milk cans (good condition); double wash-up tank; 3 Delaval Milking Machines, magnetic, single unit, and extra bucket, pump and pipe.

Sale managed by: PENNA. GUERNSEY BREEDERS' ASS'N. Harrisburg, Penna.

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Dennison, Editor
Pennsylvania News Service

HARRISBURG — One thing stands out about the Democratic administration of Governor Leader: once he makes up his mind to do something it must be done with the speed of a well-oiled oil sliding through warm water.

The manufacturers' excise tax program now on the legislative griddle plate is a good example.

The levy made its debut in the House of Representatives last Monday afternoon. Two hours after midnight Tuesday it had the final stamp of approval of the lower chamber and was on its way for Senate consideration this week.

Interesting part about this is the fact that final passage of any bill in either house requires separate readings - and approval - on three separate calendar days. In the case of the tax bill, this was accomplished of course by holding a post-midnight session which provided a carry-over into the next day.

However rules of the House require that a bill shall be given first reading the day following introduction. To introduce and give first reading the same day requires waiving House rules, or consent of a majority of the House.

It so happens that Democratic administration forces control membership in the lower chambers, and so over Republican objections Democrats sizzled the oil oiled through by setting aside the reading rule and pounding the bill through the House in less than 48 hours.

That is speed in any language - so much so in fact that Republican anti-administration stalwarts in the lower chamber were still bawling and spluttering trying to get a word in edgewise when the bill finally passed.

Many a testy Republican member of the House grumped and snapped over the fact that he didn't even have a chance to thoroughly read or study the bill before the vote was forced on the measure.

It must be said in this connection that admittedly little time was given for scanning the all-important measure - for it wasn't even available for scrutiny until after 6 p. m. Monday night and by a few hours after midnight the bill was given final passage.

Something similar to this happened, it will be recalled, with the Governor's proposed classified income tax of some months ago. Once the measure got started through the lower chamber, Democrats holding the reins literally elated it through to the Senate, where however it met a mournful and staggering demise.

Now comes the manufacturers' excise tax - it has skidded through the House and this week is before the Republican-controlled Senate.

Whether it will meet the same fate that overtook classified income tax remains to be seen. Indications are at this writing that the bill will eventually pass the Senate, although at this late date anything can and may happen.

Since the tax was first proposed by the Governor two weeks ago there has been little tim for a gathering of squawking voices of opposition. This may jell swiftly in the Senate and if it does, the administration's timetable may be upset.
