THE BULLETIN, Mount Joy, Pa. Thursday, January 19

WANTED BY THE FBI

Palmer Julius Morset
A reformed horse thief with a passion for guns is one of the most eagerly sought after criminals on the FBI's list of the "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." Early in his career, MORSET found that there was no future in stealing horses, particularly when he spent two years for this offense in the State Reformatory at Lincoln, Nebraska.

Upon his release, he turned to armed robbery but was also unsuccessful in this field, being sentenced to a term of one year to life in the Illinois State Prison on November, 1928. However, he was released in May 1940 and to all appearances had reformed, but on March 20, 1950, MORSET and an accomplice robbed a finance company in broad daylight in Chicago, Ill.

Local police officers responding to the alarm spotted MORSET and a companion fleeing from the scene of the holdup. A wild chase ensued, with the bandit car crashing into a pole and trapping both holdup men until the arrival of police. MORSET was charged with robbery and released on bail but failed to appear for trial, and his bond was forfeited.

Local authorities learned that he had fled the State of Illinois and secured the assistance of the FBI under the Unlawful Flight to Avoid Prosecution Statute.

MORSET has the reputation of being a lone wolf and commits his holdups on the spur of the moment. He gets into his automobile, rides around, and if a place looks good he commits the robbery.

The fugitive dresses well and exhibits a preference for brown clothing. He frequents taverns which feature entertainment, particularly "girl shows." Normally, MORSET is inclined to be quiet and keep to himself and is very personable and friendly when sober but dangerous and antagonistic when intoxicated.

The fugitive has been described as a restless, nervous, immature person who acts impulsively and must be considered extremely dangerous. He has a passion for guns and is heavily armed at all times, carrying a revolver in a shoulder holster and three or four loaded revolvers in his automobile.

MORSET was born: April 25, 1906, at Chicago, Ill. He is 5 ft. 10 1/2 in. tall, weighs 150 pounds medium slender build, brown graying hair, blue eyes, and fair complexion. He has been employed as a bricklayer, cement and steel worker, and tile setter. Identifying marks include a scar over the left eye, flesh mole left ear, nose bent to the left as a result of an early break, and his right arm is crooked between the wrist and elbow as a result of having been broken.
