WANTED BY THE FBI

Daniel William O'Connor

If a heavy-set, barrel-chested stranger offers you a check, scrutinize him carefully for he may be Daniel William O'Connor, a member of the FBI's list of the "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."
O'Connor is wanted by the FBI for the passing of a succession of fraudulent checks and also as a deserter from the U. S. Army. The Canadian authorities would like to get their hands on Mr. O'Connor for a charge of attempted murder in connection with his assault upon a Royal Mounted Police Officer.
This fugitive is a man of many names, which is only to be expected in one who is constantly passing bogus checks. Accompanied by his wife and 2 tiny children, O'Connor travels throughout the United States with frequent forays into Canada.

Using the name of Clarence William O'Connor, the fugitive deserted from the U. S. Army on May 6, 1955, while stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky. He immediately began his bad check passing racket and also began changing bank money orders, raising them from $8.00 to $80. or $7.00 to $70.00. He was taken into custody by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, but while being taken to jail, pulled a .32 caliber automatic pistol from his waist belt, held the officer up and viciously beat him. O'Connor took the officer's revolver, tied him up and left him severely injured in the bushes alongside the roadway. He retained the police car and escaped into the United States. This also gave him the dubious honor of making him a member of the Canadian list of Most Wanted Fugitives. This should be sufficient, warning that extreme care must be taken in dealing with this fugitive.

His wife, Mary Ursula O'Connor has been described as dark and slender. She usually remains in the background while O'Connor goes into action.

He is 5'9", weighs 200 lbs., has a burly, muscular build, blond hair, blue eyes, ruddy complexion and a dimple in his chin. He has worked as a lifeguard, wrestler, swimming instructor and truck driver. One of his hobbies is weight lifting, and he usually wears a windbreaker jacket over a T-shirt.

The Bulletin, in cooperation with the FBI, has again brought to the attention of the public the identity of a dangerous criminal who could make an appearance in any section of the country. Anyone having information concerning the whereabouts of Daniel O'Connor should immediately contact Norman H. McCab, Special Agent in Charge of the Philadelphia Office of the FBI, 500 Widener Building, Philadelphia, Penna., telephone number RIttenhouse 6-5300.

The next fugitive to be publicized on the list is the notorious "Angel" Frederick J. Tenuto, the Philadelphia convict who rose to fame through his association with Willie Sutton and his own utter disregard for the lives and rights of others.

Red Cross Needs Additional Disaster Funds

The overwhelming number of major disasters this year in the United States including the recent floods on the West Coast has caused the American National Red Cross to appeal to the people of Lancaster County for an additional $13,486, it was announced today by Francis L. Cassel, Lancaster County Chapter Chairman.

"We have no other alternative than to ask the public to volunteer special contributions," Cassel stated, "since the local chapter has just completed its campaign for funds when it recently joined with the Community Chest in the United Community Campaign. The funds Red Cross received from the United Community Campaign will be used to meet the normal operating expenses of the Chapter and the Chapter's share of the National budget." Cassel pointed out.

"If we had been able to foresee the extent of the two devastating floods in the east and the west which made it necessary for the national organization to call on the local Chapter for additional funds, we would have increased the amount requested from the United Community Campaign and, therefore, it would not have been necessary to issue this special appeal."

It is planned that there will be no appeal to the public on a regular campaign basis, but it is hoped that response to this appeal in the form of checks to the Lancaster County Chapter, American Red Cross, 430 West Orange St., Lancaster will be sufficient to meet these needs.

The Scranton Electric Company, recently was merged into Pennsylvania Power & Light Company. Merger of the two utilities became final following action by the Public Utility Commission and the Federal Power Commission.

In commenting on the merger, Chas. E. Oakes, PP&L president, said the move will "be in the best interest of the customers, employees and shareholders of both companies. Its consummation was accomplished smoothly because of the already-close ties between the two organizations."

The territory previously served by The Scranton Electric Company now becomes PP&L's Scranton division with offices in the former Scranton Electric headquarters building.

Addition of Scranton brings the total number of PP&L divisions to seven. Other divisions and their headquarters cities are: Lehigh division - Bethlehem; Schuylkill division - Pottsville; Susquehanna division - Williamsport; Harrisburg division - Harrisburg; Lancaster division - Lancaster; and the Luzerne division - Wilkes-Barre.

Consummation of the merger now makes the former Scranton Electric Company part of an electric utility system serving over 670,000 customers in a 10,000-square-mile area of Central Eastern Pennsylvania. Approximately 7,000 employees are required to man and manage the Company, which is owned by 94,000 shareholders of whom most are Pennsylvanians.

Pro forma consolidated earnings of Pennsylvania Power & Light Company (including earnings of the former Pennsylvania Water & Power Company prior to June 1955) restated on the basis it was actually merged on June 1, 1955) and its subsidiary, The Scranton Electric Company, accruing to the common stock of Pennsylvania Power & Light Company for the twelve months ended Dec. 31, 1955 were $18,317,711, equivalent to $3.10 per share of common stock outstanding at such date, as compared with $17,226,366 or $2.93 per share on the same pro forma consolidated basis for the 12 months ended December 31, 1954.

Pro forma consolidated revenues for the twelve months ended December 31, 1955 were

The Pennsylvania Story

By Mason Denison, Editor Pennsylvania News Service

Harrisburg—If the unbridled wrath of lawmakers on both sides of the political fence here in Harrisburg can be taken as any indication, Governor Leader's arrogant and now historic "walk out"—it can be called nothing less than that on the last-ditch compromise tax program last week has all but sealed the doom of the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania for some time to come.

For seventeen odd years this reporter has been stomping the halls and corridors of Capitol Hill covering the activities of one administration after another—but never have we had the displeasure of seeing a Governor or display the uncompromising bull-headedness evidenced by Mr. Leader last week just as Pennsylvania's laughingstock tax impasse was about to be broken.

For thirteen months Pennsylvania has been the butt of jokes throughout the nation over its legislative inability to come up with a tax program.

For thirteen months Pennsylvania's 38-year-old Governor has basked in the sanctum of his walnut-paneled den atop Capitol Hill and watched the fiscal impasse grow tighter and tighter.

For thirteen months he has known the politically-split complex of the Legislature, which all but doubly assured him that an administration tax program by itself could not go through the Legislature.

In the thirteen months that the Legislature has been in session and that he has donned the gubernatorial robes of office, young Mr. Leader has had his political face slapped twice on this very point as the two administration tax programs advanced by the Governor were forced through the administration-controlled House—only to meet a snub death in the anti-administration controlled Senate.

When House Republicans and Democrats two weeks ago set up a special compromise tax hunting committee—to work out a seemingly impossible tax program agreeable to both sides—it was the pinnacle of strained optimism; a last ditch death struggle stand if there ever was one.

Miraculously, the bipartisan committee agreed upon a compromise tax program—combining a sales and income tax—which through untold effort and brow-beating was sold to each side, or enough so to insure its passage.

It was a 50-50 tax program from the start—the kind the Governor said he would accept, with his stipulation being that Republicans accept whatever might be the Democratic proposal.

On the other hand Republicans as their stipulation required that the Governor agree to sign all the bills in the tax package. On this basis the committee went to work.

In the showdown late last week in the House where the tax package was assured of passage—the Governor declined to give the assurance that he would sign the tax bills after all, in contravention to the Republican stipulation.

As the disclosure was made on the floor of the hushed House, many a grimacing Democratic lawmaker spat in the cuspidor by his seat—they were willing to stand up and be counted; to vote for the sales tax Mr. Leader would not sign.

Results of Governor Leader's about-face agreement to sign remain uncertain as the lawmakers face the herculean task of again mustering enough support to assure passage.

Thanks to Pennsylvania's young Governor, the Keystone State now faces a frightening fiscal dilemma.

First settlers arrived in Juniata County as early as 1748 but permanent settlements were not made for 16 years.

$42,507,912, an increase of 7.9 per cent over the pro forma revenues for the previous year.
