Farmers Warned Of Inadequate Labor Supply

Harrisburg - PNS - Pennsylvania farmers were cautioned this week that the supply of local labor for farm work now getting into full swing this year is not adequate to meet demands.

This was the work from Secretary John R. Torquato who said it is estimated that between 6000 and 10,000 foreign or migratory workers will be used to harvest fruit and vegetable crops of the Keystone State this year.

"We will provide every help to harvest the crops, because Pennsylvania farmers need that help and it is important to the economy of the state," Torquato commented.

In this connection he issued a plea to all farmers and communities requiring such help this year to take "additional steps" to provide decent housing and working conditions for such workers and their families.

"Great improvements have been made in recent years but much remains to be done," he said. "We will be fair and go along with earnest efforts to meet standards, but I caution violators will be severely dealt with and poor camps will be closed."

The workers in the main will be from the South and Puerto Rico.
