

Paul Martin Jr. Family Begins Missionary Work

THEN THERE was the handsome young Maytown Hade who enjoys the hockey match. Last week he told a "Get me two tickets to the hockey matches Saturday night."

SO THE friend bought the tickets and handed them over. Our young hero took his Saturday night date, drove to Hershey and was a little surprised to see only a few cars in the parking lot. Investigation disclosed that he had slipped a notch.

ALTHOUGH there has been hockey almost every Saturday night all season long, there was none last week because of a figure skating tournament. His tickets were for next Saturday.

A JOKE of another kind has been played on Mt. Joy community. Originally the new dial telephone system which includes exchange names was to have designated Mount Joy as Olympia. Thus, the code letters would have been OL.

HOWEVER, recently the name was changed to Oldfield. The two code letters remain OL but several local businesses already had printing done, using the Olympia designation.

Be My Valentine

Because the season for sending Valentines will soon be here, there is something that should be kept in mind by those who send their messages of affection.

THERE IS a limit to the minimum and maximum size which may be sent unsealed for the two-cent rate. Minimum is 2 3/4 by 4 and the maximum is 9 by 12 inches. Unsealed cards either under or over these sizes will require more postage.

UNLESS you don't mind adding embarrassment to your love, check the size of your cards and ask the postal clerks if in doubt.

THE SEED catalogues which are appearing these days look very much in place this time of year and help to keep alive the anticipation of spring.

BUT THE thing which interested us last week was the arrival of a mail order catalogue which — among other things — offered for sale live monkeys, skunks, alligators, hamsters and many other live animals, including Shetland ponies.

AND — all offered on "convenient budget payment plans."

Hear Problems Of Coal Industry

The past, present and anticipated future of the bituminous coal industry were discussed for Mount Joy Rotarians Tuesday noon at the service club meeting at Hostetters.

Robert T. Lang of State College was the speaker. He is executive director and secretary of the Central Coal Producers association.

After a heavy decline in coal use several years ago, the industry has made big strides to recover some of its lost business, he said. And — as of 1957, the future looks brighter than it has in many years.

Tremendously important to national defense, the industry, he said could not supply the demand thrown up in it in case of emergency.

Some of the problems which plague the business, he said, are lack of capital and man power. Young men, he explained, are not staying with mining. The average miner is 46.

The current estimate of coal supplies for the future indicate availability of the coal for 2,000 years.

The speaker was introduced by Ray Wiley.

Mount Joy Mechanic Wins Awards For Fine Restoration Of Antique Auto

It took about six years of work — off and on — to accomplish the job, but last weekend Roy M. Snyder of Mount Joy R.D. 2, was amply repaid for his efforts.

One of several thousand antique car hobbyists across the nation, Snyder on Saturday received at Philadelphia a plaque and loving cup for his "most perfectly self-restored antique automobile."

He restored a rare 1905 Reo Runabout.

About six years ago he found the car — in a deplorable condition of repair in an old barn near Carlisle. Friends who knew he was interested in old autos had "tipped him off" that he might find the car there.

After buying what was left of the ancient vehicle, he brought it home, took it apart and refinished practically every single piece. Finally, after reassembly, it became a thing of wonderful beauty and of considerable value.

As is the case with the mailman who takes a Sunday afternoon walk, so with Snyder. For, he is an auto along to the 1957 winner.

mechanic who has as a hobby by automobiles. He and his father and brothers operate a garage just west of Florin.

Not only does Snyder own the prize-winning Reo, the Snyders have a 1909 Ford and a 1930 Chrysler roadster.

After nearly six years of work on the car, Snyder first showed his Reo at Hershey last fall. Probably the next time it will be on public display will be in the spring when the Red Rose auto club holds its annual show at Lancaster.

The car, which is refinished to original specifications — not fancy with chrome and colorful paint — is entirely roadworthy, but because of its relatively slow speeds on modern highways, it is transported on a trailer, thus becoming less of a traffic hazard.

Phydelphia banquet and annual meeting of the Antique Automobile Club of America, will keep as his own the plaque, but, the mailman who takes a Sunday afternoon walk, so with Snyder. For, he is an auto along to the 1957 winner.

The meeting was held at the Franklin Institute. The AACA is the oldest and largest automotive historical society in America. Founded 21 years ago, the hobby has become one of the most popular and fastest growing in America. There are over 6,000 members who own and have restored approximately 11,000 automobiles, dating from 1892.

Snyder's 1905 Reo Runabout is one of the rarest and most unusual antique automobiles that is representative of one of more than 2,500 antique automobile makes manufactured in the United States.
