and Coach Staley's declaration that the first reason this year was that the local boys had a desire to play baseball.
Staley has been in baseball for 20 years—13 in the majors—and he told of some of the problems of operating a farm club, how the chief business of the team is to train promising young players and to make them big leaguers.
He paid high tribute to McCue and expressed the hope that his seasoning here will boost him into the big time. The Mount Joy boy, in his remarks, pointed out that several years ago John Davitt told him to "hustle" and has been doing that "four times as much as the big boys."
Staley said that another factor in making Donegal champs is the tremendous competition inside the squad for every position on the team. He has many more fine ball players besides the ten who carried the chief weight of the championship drive. Joe Hostetter and Larry Watkins are the only seniors.
The program was arranged by Earl Koser, Rotary vice-president.

They will be the guests of the management of Forestview Lodge, Walker, Minn., arranged through the National Press Photographer's Association, which is holding its convention in Minneapolis this year.

In addition to the one week's free vacation, Dussinger will compete in a photographic contest with many prizes for the best pictures of Minnesota's vacation land.

Mrs. Dussinger, also will have a chance at photographing the Land of the Lakes. Eastman Kodak will present her with a camera outfit with which she must take 12 pictures, competing only against other wives for a special prize.

The second week, the Dussingers will attend the convention in Minneapolis, where the contest prizes will be awarded.
