Returns For Third
Gretna Season

VINCENT CARROLL
Vincent Carroll returns for his third season at Gretna Playhouse, Mt. Gretna, to appear in the opening show, "The Golden Fleecing," which started playing on Thursday for a week's run.

A busy television performer, Carroll has been seen on Playhouse 90, "Crossroads," "My True Story" and many other programs. He also has done film work. Last season at Gretna he will be remembered as the quiz genius in "Howie," the discouraged cartoonist in "Tunnel of Love" and the Broadway playwright in "Say, Darling." In 1957 he played in "A Hatful of Rain," "Tobacco Road" and "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter," among others. In the new Broadway comedy, "The Golden Fleecing," he portrays a mild-mannered scientist who with the aid of an electronic computer, sets out to break the bank at a gambling casino with hilarious results.

Other leading roles will be played by Guil Dudley, Arne Zaslave, Betty Rollin, Christina Bartel and the familiar Gretna player, Gene Galvin. Also in the cast are Arthur Huges, Leonard Frey, Eden Nicholas, Charles Bondi, Jim Murphy, Joseph Belia and Robert DeMora.
