

And Baby Makes Two . . .

This tot doesn't mind being "penned up" with his pet. The Dalmatian, though large, is a gentle breed, patient with children. Purina Pet Care Center experts advise folks with very young children to use great care in choosing an older dog as a family pet. The dog should be gentle but playful, frisky but not rough, and accustomed to being around children.

home and supply sparkle during the dull winter days.

To start a window garden, take down the drapes on one window and let the sun come in. Then use hangers, brackets and shelves for support. Choose the window that suits the plants you like.

For the north window: vines and foliage plants — caladium, ivies, philodendron and intermix with African violets. For south windows, you can have all flowering plants, for example, your left over Christmas plants, lantana, Christmas cactus, shrimp plant, crown of thorns and others.

A lowbrow is a person who refuses to be bored if there's an 'exit' near by.

Heat Pumps Gaining Favor

One of the fastest-growing methods of combining home heating and air conditioning in a single system is the electric air-to-air heat pump.

This is particularly true in the south, where extreme cold is unusual. But the heat pump is steadily gaining favor in other parts of the country, too.

Successful installations have been made in the northeast, north, northwest, and southwest as well.

Heavy utility company emphasis on electric heat, including substantial lowering of rates, has helped boost interest in many areas, since heat pumps are considered the lowest cost way to heat electrically.

New heat pumps with greater capacity, are expected to help this unique approach to year-around air-conditioning gain even more rapidly in 1964, according to home comfort experts.

Wood Industries Sixth Largest

Wood products industries are the sixth largest industrial group in Pennsylvania on the basis of full-time employment, according to a School of Forestry survey at the Penna. State University.

Yearly wages and salaries in the State total $314 million for 100,000 persons in these industries, says Peter W. Fletcher, Director of the School of Forestry.

On a national basis, wood products industries are the third largest industry, employing 1.4 million persons, Fletcher adds.

The Lennox, S. D., Independent makes this astute observation: "In observing some government officials' refusal to face reality in dealing with the adversaries of our system, we are reminded of the man who jumped out of a 40th story window, and when passing the fifth story called out to a friend, 'It hasn't hurt yet!'"

Timely Tips

Rinse with clear water.

Regardless of the type strain start treatment at outer edges and work toward the middle. This keeps the spot as small as possible. Blot up the solution; don't rub or brush vigorously or you may fuzz the rug surface and this could appear as a spot. Use water sparingly. Excess moisture may seep through to the rug backing and make a stain.

Lint In Dryer

If you are having trouble with your clothes dryer — here's a tip. Check the lint trap before you call the serviceman. If the lint trap is clogged, it may be the cause of your trouble. Care of the lint trap is one job you can handle . . . and it is one basic job that many persons tend to neglect. A clogged trap will reduce air circulation and cause slow drying. It may also affect controls. A regular check for a two-or-three-week period will indicate how often you need to clean the lint trap. However, during the winter, your washing garments may shed considerable fuzz or lint. This probably means the trap will need cleaning often — perhaps after each use of the dryer.
