Korean Vets Take GI Benefits

Nearly two of every five living Korean Conflict veterans have thus far taken advantage of the Korean GI Bill having completed or being presently enrolled in some form of educational or readjustment training, the Veterans Administration revealed.

Latest available figures show there are approximately 5.6 million Korean veterans listed in the VA's monthly tabulation of "America's living veterans," and data furnished by the VA's department of Compensation, Pension and Education disclose 2,285,100 have entered the GI bill schooling programs.

A further breakdown of this second phase of the greatest mass educational program ever undertaken in the free world—the GI Bills of World War II and the Korean Conflict — showed most of the former GIs chose education and training in crafts, trade and industry. Total in that category was 582,000.

Other categories include: Business administration and managerial - 275,000.

Engineering - 187,000.

Teaching - 141,000.

Medicine, dentistry, veterinarian - 61,000.

Physical and biological sciences - 45,000.

Of the 2.3 million trained, 1,207,000 went to colleges, while the remainder were trained in institutions below college level, correspondence schools, on-the-job and on-the-farm training.

In comparison the GI Bill for World War II veterans education found 7.8 million veterans taking advantage of the benefits.

Some 15 million veterans of WW II are on the VA listing of living veterans while the Korean Conflict shows 5.6 million.

Since the GI Bills became effective in 1944, veterans of WW II and the Korean Conflict have received educational and training benefits totalling more than $14 billion through June, 1963.

New Barley Seed Available

Certified seed of Pennrad barley, a new winter barley for Pennsylvania, will be available to farmers for the first time this year.

The new barley was described as outstanding in yield and winter hardiness by Robert P. Pfeifer, small grains breeder for the Agricultural Experiment Station at Penn State university. Dr. Pfeifer said Pennrad has yielded 5 to 15 bushels more per acre than Wong, the current leading variety, in each of the last four years.

Pennrad can be grown north of the region of adaptation recommended for Wong.
Dr. Pfeifer told members of the Pennsylvania Crop Improvement Association. It is scald resistant, has stiff straw, and is beardless, he added.

"Pennrad should share equal popularity with Red-coat wheat among grain producers in this region," the Penn State researcher stated.
"Where growing conditions in tests were severe and winters harsh, Pennrad survived and produced good crops while most other varieties failed."

He suggested planting Penn-rad in early to mid September with late plantings possible in southeastern Pennsylvania. Two bushels of seed should be seeded per acre, he added, planted one and one-
