MISS TEEN AGER

... answers questions about Junior Miss etiquette, grooming and interests.

Q. When I go to the beach, I look as if I'm off on a three-month safari. I'd rather perish than go without all my cosmetics. By the time I get all the bottles into my beach bag, I'm stuck with a lumpy load. Sometimes one of the bottles breaks and then I have a drippy towel. What's the solution?

A. Your basic plan for beauty at the beach is a good one! All you need is organization. One smart gal we know made a beach beauty box by covering and lining an old cigar box with Marvalon adhesive covering to match her swimsuit and beach towel. Why not copy the idea and also invest in three or four small, inexpensive plastic bottles for your make-up or lotions. It's a good idea to fill these bottles as "extras" and keep them in your beauty box along with an extra lipstick, mirror and Pocket Pack tissues. Then you'll always have your prettiest face turned to that important beach public.

Q. I'm tall and slender. People tell me I look like a model, but I think I look like a telephone pole. What clothes can I wear to look shorter?

A. Lucky you!! Cash in on the litesome, model look by choosing two-piece outfits and dresses that have a definite waist line. Dresses in two colors and skirts and blouses also are good. To avoid turning your model look into a stringbean appearance stay away from long-line styles that go from shoulder to hem without a break. Some full skirts are becoming on tall girls, but choose them carefully. Do wear bold patterns, plaids and horizontal stripes. Don't try for frilly, baby-doll styles or go wild with color, contrast and high fashion lines. Stand tall and ignore those green-with-envy glances from the pint-sized gals.

Q. My boy friend and I had a fight the other day because three people telephoned me while he was there and we were a little late getting to the movies. He said I should have got off the phone faster than I did. I can't help it if friends call me. Wouldn't it be rude to rush them off the phone?

A. Isn't it more rude to keep your date waiting while you chatter on-and on? No one will feel affronted if you explain in a friendly manner that you're on your way out and must leave to be on time. Say you'll call back — and do! But to ignore your escort for long talks with casual telephoners implies that they're more important to you than your date with him. Is that the impression you wanted to make?
