MAKE COMPOST

Collect falling leaves of shade trees and shrubs and pile them on a compost heap rather than burn them, reminds J. Lincoln Pearson, extension flouriculturist at Penn State University. When the leaves are decayed, this material forms an excellent mold to use for repotting the house plants, or topdressing around choice perennials.

There is nothing more imprudent than excessive prudence, —C. C. Colton.

An old man once told me that women don't believe half of what they say to other women and not a tenth of what is said to them.
