Officials Given Look At Plans For Proposed Bypass

With interest in the 1965 political campaign already running higher than at any time in many years, announcement was made this week that a local organization plans a real old-time "town meeting" sometime shortly before the primary.

Present plans — and they already are under way — call for a town-wide rally (perhaps at the fire hall and maybe outside) at which all political candidates, both Republican and Democratic, will be given an opportunity to present their cases in public.

With more candidates in the field this year than in a long long time, the idea sounds like a very very good one and we'll keep our ear to the ground for further developments.

This is an old message but one which has not been heard for several years.

As motorists this week begin attaching new license plates to their cars, they should take special care of the "old" tags, Police Chief Bruce Kline says.

The plates which have been used for several years should not be left around, available to the person who might use them for improper purposes.

For instance, who would want his old plate on a car which was involved in some crime? Put the old ones in a safe place or completely destroy them, Kline advises.

And, speaking of police — which Mount Joy officer received a $1 overtime parking ticket in a neighboring city recently;

Local officials last week were given a look at plans for the proposed, new Route 230 bypass around Mount Joy, Elizabethtown and Middletown.

Members of the Lancaster County Planning commission staff were at the Donegal Annex on Wednesday, March 10, and shown aerial maps with proposed routings.

These maps will be on display next week on March 25 when the Pennsylvania Highways Department will hold a public hearing at Elizabethtown.

At that time, comments and statements concerning the proposed construction will be heard and later transmitted to highway officials for consideration. Such statements will concern such matters as what effect the proposed road will have on the economy of the area. It is not for the purpose of

To Discuss Bypass At Fire Hall

Called by the Mount Joy Chamber of Commerce, a public meeting will be held Monday night, March 22, at the Friendship Fire Hall, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, to discuss and to formulate a community idea about the proposed, new bypass highway.

All persons of the community who are interested in any way are invited and urged to attend.

The community's wishes need to be formulated for presentation at the highway department's hearing on Thursday, March 25.

hearing individual land ownership problems.

The maps show the highway corridor in the Mount Joy area as follows:

Approaching the new highway from the east, new construction would first be apparent immediately after crossing Big Chiques Creek.

An interchange between present Road 230 and the new bypass planned immediately west of the present bridge. From that point the roadway arcs northward in a long sweeping curve and then heads westward and crosses the Manheim-Mount Joy road at the "S" curves.

New construction of roads in that area would virtually eliminate the curves.

From that point, the proposed road is just south of the beacon light. The new road would virtually intersect the south end of the "S" curve on that roadway.

At that point, the roadway moves westward across a valley to another interchange, located about a quarter mile north of the Garber farm on the Cedar Tree road.

The interchange there is with legislative road No. 36068.

Shortly west of that interchange area, the roadway swings northward and then westward to the edge of Elizabethtown.

The interchange on the west bank of Big Chiques creek utilizes the present bridge and points up the reason Road 230 between Lancaster and that bridge has been designed for some time as an area which would become limited access.

Tied with the new planning for limited access, the four-lane highway from Lancaster westward would thus be all one stretch of similar highway.

As now planned, the route in this area follows a corridor which will involve practically no buildings. Previously proposed lines involved problems of farm buildings, schools etc.

After the hearing next week, and after approvals are given, the final drawings will be begun and the exact locations plotted.

'Of This and That'

by the editor's wife

No day is ever dull in newspaper work!

Last week, after our column came out in The Bulletin we met Miss Sara Habecker, Delta Street (in the post-office).

"I enjoyed your column about the 93-year-old doctor who is still practicing," she told us. And then she added, "And do you know, I had something of the same experience as the car salesman who was delivered by the doctor and later sold him his 43 cars!"

"After I became a registered nurse, I worked for the doctor who delivered me!"

An interesting visitor came into The Bulletin office on Tuesday afternoon. He was 81-year-old John A. Climenhagan of Harrisburg, Penna., who wanted 500 sheets of a special size of typing paper for letter writing.

"My eyesight is very poor," he said, "but I can pick out the letters on the typewriter and carry on my correspondence in that way!"

Warm, friendly and interesting, Mr. Climenhagan told us he is a Canadian by birth, but came to this area many years ago to help establish Messiah College.

"My son, Arthur was president of the college for awhile, until last August," he said proudly.

We had hoped to attend the big Antiques show in the Coliseum in New York City this past weekend. But it didn't work out that way.

However, we did get a "second hand" view of the show through the eyes of a thoughtful friend, who came into The Bulletin to give us a report about it when she
