SOIL LEVEL CHAGE DAMAGES TREES

Trees can be damaged many ways during construction. Only a few inches change in soil level causes some trees to die reports A.

O. Rasmussen, extension ornamental horticulturist at Penn State university. Piling soil around a tree, even temporarily, or building a paved driveway close by may weaken it by suffocating the root ### system.

Driving trucks or other heavy equipment near trees often compacts the soil in such a way that growth is reduced.

HUMIDITY IS IMPORTANT

Humidity plays a part in the appearance of plants in a home, says A. O. Rasmussen, extension ornamental horticulturist at Penn State university. Some plants tolerate low humidity, others do not. Some will grow and drop their lower leaves. More information on selecting plants with suggestions for growing under various conditions are available from your county agent.
