MOUNT JOY, PENNA., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30, 1965

SEVEN CENTS

Last week we told you a story about a horse. The week before there was the fascinating tale about a goat. This week we relate the antics of two birds.

Mrs. Wilbur I. Beahm, of Donegal Springs Road, was out hanging up wash one day recently when she saw a baby robin near her wash basket. The next time she looked there were two baby robins on the basket.

She shooed them away and went into the house, thinking that their mother probably was nearby.

But, in a few minutes she saw the pair on the sill outside the kitchen window. Wondering if they were hungry, she looked around and finally decided to try bologna. So, with a piece in her hand, she went out onto the back porch and sat down. To her amazement, the little ones hopped right up into her lap, opened their mouths and all but said, "Feed us, now!"

And, feed them, she did. Breaking off little pieces of meat, she carefully, and with shaking hand, she admits, dropped the bites into their awaiting, upturned mouths.

Mrs. B. called to a neighbor, who came to see the sight.

"Well," said the neighbor, "I wouldn't have believed it unless I had seen it."

The rumors floating out of a neighboring area about "someone buying land" finally are out in the open. We have heard that the area is to become everything from a duck farm to a horse track. One wag even suggested that maybe the Philadelphia Phillies are going to locate

N-S To Ask Annexation Of Plant

Decisions were made in Niles, Mich., Wednesday morning, June 30, by National-Standard Company to seek annexation to Mount Joy for its new plant and property east of the borough.

Details of the procedure were not outlined, but clearance through company officials was completed and legal manipulations will now begin.

The plant and its property east of the borough line, is located in Rapho township.

Information of the decision to seek annexation came from Frank Barron, secretary of the company. It was not anticipated that necessary legal work could be cleared in time for a petition to be in the hands of the Borough Council by the July meeting time.

Postal Service Halts on Monday

Postal service in Mount Joy will be at an absolute minimum on Monday, July 5, in observance of the Fourth of July.

There will be no window service and no delivery service in the borough or on rural routes.

The post office lobby, however, will be open until about 9:30 a.m. and lock box patrons may pick up early mail which will be sorted and placed in boxes.

The only mail to be dispatched will be a "Sunday" type pickup of mail deposited before 4 p.m. in the box in front of the office.

'Of This and That'

by the editor's wife

"Here comes the bride!" In how many churches in Lancaster County and across the country have those words echoed during the month of June?

The number of times would be astonishing, no doubt, for the popularity of June as a wedding month greatly overshadows that of the other eleven months!

Having attended two weddings, and having been invited but unable to attend several others, we find our interest in this perennial activity considerably heightened this year.

And, as we observe and read of weddings in this year of 1965, we are beginning to wonder if the "fashion" of weddings is undergoing a little change at the present time.

Why do we wonder, you say? Two of the weddings to which we were invited utilized a regular church service, complete with hymns, scripture, organ music and sermon, for the wedding ceremony.

As we spoke to other people of this, we discovered that this is not uncommon, that it often occurs. We were told that one young couple, not wishing to stand during the "sermon," were seated in front of the minister on beautiful Victorian side chairs. (The chairs were their own, wedding gifts from the bride's parents, and will always be doubly precious because of the part they played in the ceremony.)

Another couple, after entering the church with their attendants in the traditional fashion, was seated in the
