YOUR LEGISLATOR'S REPORT

RICHARD A. ENYDER
STATE SENATOR

Things are happening in Lancaster County!
 Some years ago, no one would have predicted statewide interest in Drumore Township. It was a quiet and friendly area on the Susquehanna River, with income largely from farming, and timberland on river hills.
 Several weeks ago, Susquehannock State Park, a scenic look-out point with picnic groves, was formally opened to the public, after a spirited effort by local area residents to establish it.
 Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Secretary of Forests and Waters, was there, saying he wished he could open a park like this every week in Pennsylvania. Local residents were warm in their admiration of the conversion of the area, which was remembered as a honeysuckle- and - poison-ivy-covered area in which copperheads abounded.
 The travelers alighting there now have a magnificent river view, with Mt. Johnson Island visible on clear days, the atomic plant in York County plainly seen, and the work on the gigantic $63 million project in full swing nearby. Upriver, the site of the proposed Holtwood bridge is visible.
 The park shows what a group of determined citizens can do. The group, headed by Robert K. Mowrer, worked for nine years to bring this about, and Dr. Goddard concedes it was their persistent urging that brought the results.
 Dr. Goddard was proud of the state's work in this area. Pointing to the sturdy wooden bench-and-table combinations, he said each cost only $20, with state timber, and that, ordinarily, the cost to a manufacturer would be several times as much.

Residents in other parts of our county are also progressively alert. Mount Joy recently dedicated its new public library, adjoining the H. G. Carpenter residence, and this had the enthusiastic approval of State Librarian Ernest Doerschuk, who is a Lancaster Countian also, residing in Millersville.
 At the ceremony, Doerschuk pointed out the facilities available to any literate person who wants a book or information, and the network by which the librarian in Mount Joy, for example, can get from the Lancaster Library, which, in turn, can obtain from the state library or other sources the material desired. As a result, the average person has at his whim greater and faster information than royalty or university heads enjoyed a century ago.
 Landis Valley Museum, a state installation, has enjoyed the growing popularity of "Craft Days". Visitors come to see farm and household handicrafts practiced by persons who know these arts. The popularity of this attraction shows again that people prefer to come to a "living museum" in which things are happenings, than to pass by a glass-case assemblage of exhibits not activated by the impact of a personality.
 This same belief is what is thought to have influenced the State Museum Commission in preferring Strasburg as a site for the proposed railroad museum. People will come to ride a railroad because they are participants in an experience rather than mere onlookers. A state museum nearby promises to attract many of these people who are already there to ride the trains.

District Attorney Wilson Bucher, Columbia, has been suggested for appointment to the Presidential Crime Commission by Senator Hugh Scott.

Whether the appointment will occur depends, of course upon the type of balance needed in the presidential commission and upon the whims of political chance.

If the President wants a prosecutor from a county which has had a commendably low amount of serious crime, Mr. Bucher would qualify admirably. The FBI records show that our serious offenses here occurred at a rate of only 264 per 100,000 population as compared with a rate of 767 in Pennsylvania as a whole and 1198 in the nation as a whole.

The absence of organized vice in Lancaster County has been due to the splendid efforts of our prosecuting officials through the years, all of whom deserve credit for keeping an unbroken chain of enforcement against racketeering elements. It is quite likely that this is one of the things which has made our area attractive to expanding enterprise, and accounts for our high employment and our economic stability.

The Governor and Mrs. Scranton have been holding social events at the so-called "mansion" at Indiantown Gap.

The house itself is large, by ordinary standards, and might be fairly compared to the home of the leading doctor or businessman in the average Pennsylvania borough. It is pleasantly and tastefully arranged.

However, it is inadequate for the obligations of chief executive of a state of Pennsylvania's size. If the Governor is expected to do much entertaining, in the interest of coaxing outside industry in, for example, it is hardly impressive.

One item is of interest to Lancaster County: In the main living room, over the fireplace, is an old print of the birthplace of Robert Fulton, clearly identified as being in Lancaster County. There are a number of other historical prints in the room, but this one is the largest. The shelves of books on either side are largely on historical and biographical subjects, and contemporary volumes on assorted fields.
