

YOUR LEGISLATOR'S REPORT

Richard A. Snyder
State Representative
13th District

A great deal of sound judgment is being contributed to the working of the State Government by Lancaster County men and women who served on boards and commissions.

Many of these groups require persons of particular skill, and, in many cases the service is given for little or no remuneration.

Joseph W. Kettering of Elizabethtown, and president of College Trustees there, is a member of the State Board for the Examination of Public Accountants.

Amos Funk of Millersville, long active in farmers' affairs is on the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

Dr. Herbert K. Cooper, recently retired head of the Cleft Palate Clinic in Lancaster, represents the dental profession on the Advisory Health Board.

John W. W. Loose, long active in the local Historical Society, is on the Valley Forge Park Commission.

Perhaps most of the County's current interest lies in the new Highways Commission and its establishment of priorities with respect to roads to be built. Henry Huth of Pequea, president of the engineering firm which bears his name, is one of the six members.

Education comes in for an increasing share of funds and attention under the Scranton administration, and the new 17-member State Board of Education includes Parke H. Lutz of Denver, retired executive of the Winston Publishing firm.

Sportsmen have a continuing interest in the conduct of the State Game Commission and the members are chosen from various districts over the state with special care. Robt. E. Fashnacht, Ephrata, who has been active in the sportsmen's associations for many years, was named to the Game Commission last year.

Lawrence N. Shilling, who maintained a downtown barbershop in Lancaster for many years, is one of the five-member State Board of Barber Examiners.

The Board of Millersville State College includes trustees from York, Lebanon and Lancaster Counties, and members from this county include Robert L. Ressler, New Holland industrial executive; Ben E. Mann, of the family identified with tobacco and banking here; Mrs. Velma B. McCullough, wife of the radio and television executive and the daughter of a former Millersville Dean; and former State Representative Norman Wood of Peach Bottom.

The State Hospitals each have a Board of Trustees, and the Embreeville State Hospital Board includes, from this county Warren H. Fake, Ephrata physician; Mrs. Alma C. Poyck of Lancaster, active in the mental health association here; and Arthur R. Campbell, retired Lancaster business man.

The Thaddeus Stevens Trade School has a Board of Trustees which includes, by appointment of Governor Scranton, Alexander T. Stein, Lancaster attorney; Robert W. Herr, Quarryville; Thomas J. Cence, Edgar C. Scheid, Arthur D. Webster, Walter C. McMinn, Jr., all of Lancaster, all known in business circles here. Among the members by appointment of prior Governors are Geo. C. Cruden, Jr., Howard J. Hanlon, and Paul R. Yarnall, all of Lancaster.

The Lancaster County Board of Assistance includes Mrs. Nancy C. H. Vanderslice of Marietta; Mortimer Kadushin, Reeder L. Eshelman, Mrs. Frances H. May, Dudley M. Mason, Mrs. Julia P. Arnold, and Dr. Alfred N. Sayres, all Lancastrians.

Mrs. Shirley W. Steinman, Pequea, author of several books and member of a newspaper publishing family, is a lay member on the Advisory Council on Library Development.

Henry N. Hillard, Lancaster osteopath, is a member of the Advisory Committee to the Office of General and Special Hospitals in the Department of Public Welfare.

The responsibility lodged in the various boards and commissions is evident. They touch the lives and interests of thousands of citizens and are most necessary as a guide to the career people in state government.

cruise . . . but not yet. In the meantime, however, the 1966 winter doldrums are practically gone!

We faintly suspect that perhaps this "medicine" for the winter "blues" is by no means just our own discovery, for a young friend who came to visit the other day had a "Summer Tours to Europe" sticking out of his coat pocket! We can imagine that he would vouch for the efficacy of our prescription!

Several interesting things happened as a result of our column last week about grandfather clocks.

Lloyd Garman, Donegal Springs Road, dropped into the Bulletin office to tell us that he has a "Brown" clock of an early period, of which he is very proud.

Mr. Garman has a great interest in antiques of all kinds, and collects interesting and unusual pieces. He told us of three pairs of "pitcher vases" which he owns, and which we would like very much to see. They are a combination of ceramic and iron, look like pitchers but were used as decorative vases.

"I can't find them in books on antiques, and dealers tell me they never saw anything like them," he explained. "But I have three pairs, so they DO exist!"

Mr. Garman also has an over-size parlor easel on which to rest a large family portrait instead of hanging it on the wall. It is elaborate, he says, with carved wood, and padding of velvet. That, too, we would like to see!

Another proud grandfather clock owner is Mrs. Martha Kretzing, of Manheim street, who has a family clock which she inherited and brought to Mount Joy from Maryland.

received a Valentine this week, sentimentally postmarked "Loveland" Colorado!

On the outside of the envelope was a cupid shooting his arrow into a big red and white heart, and the words: "A note of true affection is signed and sealed within. And sent from mile-high Loveland, where romantic trails begin."

It seems that the little Colorado town, because of its romantic name, has a rush of mail each year coming from all over the country to be postmarked for Valentine's Day.

It took a "bit of doing" to get the valentine bought in Mount Joy, signed, addressed and sent to the Loveland postmaster for remailing back to Mount Joy in time to arrive by Feb. 14. But it happened—and we will treasure this "special" valentine always.

Touch of humor: Who was the disc jockey for the Valentine Dance at the Donegal Annex last Saturday night, on Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12?

Why Ed LINCOLN of course!

Robert Feeman served as announcer and Carol Zimmer gave a monologue entitled "Mother May I."

The announcer introduced and read the caption to "Candid Camera" which consisted of ten slides and one short film.

A play entitled "Beany's Private Eye" was presented, starring: Nancy Kopp, Merle Brubaker, Stephanie Shank, David Spickler, Thomas Derr, Gail Kendig, Jane Stohler, David Stumpf, Douglas Estock and Kenneth Rohrbaugh. Others taking part included, Don Colbert, Robert Brinser, Carol Zimmerman, Jackie Bish, Gail Geib, Carol Houséal, Betsy Hallgren, Linda Gutshall, Barbara Goodling, Cora Hockenberry, Karen Hall, Connie McNaughton, Stephanie Shank, LuAnn Singer, Jane Stohler, Jane McDowell, David Beamenderfer, Phil Nissley, Ken Rohrbaugh, Fred Koser, Michael Johns and Karl Heilman.

Barbara Kopp played the organ. The directors of the play were Jill Hayman and Maryjane Eshleman. The overall director was William Earhart.

Reuben Shellenberger of Mount Joy visited Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Roberts and son Robert, in Lancaster.
