As a supplement to that tract, the school has its eye upon the Marietta Memorial park, which presents an attractive arrangement for all parties concerned.

The neighboring plots of public-owned land are likened by schoolmen to the Manheim situation, where park and school campus are adjacent and available for exchange use.

However, from there on, the planning for the new building is still a matter of speculation.

It appears probable that there will be both an elementary school and a junior high school in the complex.

How many rooms, what purposes they will serve and what they will cost is anyone's guess at this point.

Already the project has begun to grind through some of the various offices of the state government which have control over certain aspects of building programs. And, let there be no misunderstanding, the state has great control over what is done locally where the schools are concerned.

Such things as libraries, cafeterias, recreation areas, acreage, water, sewer, etc. are much controlled.

There has been talk that maybe the new building would include an indoor swimming pool. Such a facility is not state mandated at this time. But, schoolmen who are responsible for development of the program recall that only a few short years ago libraries were not demanded. Yet, now they are standard equipment and would be something akin to an auto without a rear view mirror. It has been mentioned that before the Marietta development is ready, pools may be demanded by the state.

Before much more can be done, architects must take the project to their drawing rooms and begin designing to fill the needs which finally are specified.

When these matters will be-

Offers World-Wide Advertising Plan

Central Eastern Pennsylvania industries can now advertise their products all over the world through a program developed by private power companies, including Pennsylvania Power & Light Company.

The new program, according to S. F. Diffenderfer, PP&L's Lancaster division vice-president, is titled: "U.S. Products for Export Catalog Files"

He explained that through the catalog services of the World Trade Information Center, Inc., and follow-up service by the Export Marketing Service of the American Express Company, systematic circulation of product information will be assured.

"Every working day," said Diffenderfer, "American foreign service posts around the world receive 9,000 inquiries about products made by U. S. manufacturers."

The program will work like this: product literature or catalog of the subscribing company is bound in the U.S. Products for Export Catalog Files for appropriate product category. The files are then distributed to U.S. foreign service offices in quantities recommended by the American commercial officer in each area.

The files also go to offices of American Express, cooperating airlines, shipping companies, trade centers, trade fairs and trade associations and other groups interested in promoting U. S. trade overseas.

Diffenderfer emphasized the value of world-wide distribution of product information through the program at low cost in comparison with other methods. The subscription rate is the only cost charged a company to include its literature in the files. Two pages, for example — a single sheet printed on both sides — may be included for $80.

NEW SEATS

New push-back chairs are being installed this week in the Cinema theatre, Columbia. Four hundred of the present seats in Cinema, recently completely rebuilt and repainted, will be installed in the Marietta Theatre, beginning next Monday, with no interruption to the shows.

gin to take definite shape is not exactly known at the present. But — Donegal district at present has about used up all available class room space and within another year or two again will begin to be cramped.

The district in past years, has been able to look ahead, plan ahead and move ahead to prevent such things as classes in hallways, half-time schools, double shifts, classes in temporary buildings, etc., etc.

How Donegal faces its current problems for maintaining proper facilities probably can be seen in the reflection of how similar matters have been handled in the past.

As it appears now, a new, modern and completely adequate building to meet state specifications and local needs will be built within the next year or two along the south side of the Marietta bypass.
