WITH THE growing season just around the corner we're reminded of how important soil, particularly topsoil, is to humanity. Here is the layer of the earth's crust on which we are dependent for our major source of livelihood—food. Soil serves as the natural home of the plant. And plants are nature's factories from which comes the food, feed and fiber crops to supply our needs. It is the soil which so effectively links people and plants in the natural cycle of living things. No small wonder we need to pay attention to conserving soil for future generations whose ever greater numbers will soon be inhabiting the earth.

BRUCellosis is being slowly eradicated from cattle and swine, two leading sources of red meat in our diet. In addition, dairy cattle provide the basis for the big dairy industry. Recently, the state of Washington became the tenth state to gain the distinction of being brucellosis-free. In Pennsylvania, we are approaching the halfway point in the number of counties to be declared free of brucellosis, a disease known in humans as undulant fever. It is good to know the disease is no longer the menace to human health as it was a generation or two ago.

CROWN VETCH has come into popularity as a ground cover for slopes, banks and barren spots where it is difficult to grow grass. The highway department has been quick to recognize its value on steep areas where the soil is mighty poor. Crown vetch blossoms profusely in the summer months, grows about 20 inches tall, has no maintenance requirements and will not spread to adjoining areas. Here is a top-rooted legume plant worthy of consideration in those troublesome places where nothing else seems to grow.

TOBACCO seedbeds will soon make their appearance on many county farms. The easily visible white muslin, neatly stretched over the tobacco beds, has been a kind of harbinger of spring for many of us. Tobacco seedlings emerge as very small, tender plants; they need protection from the cold, changeable days in late March and early April. It is truly amazing how the seedbed nurtures the tiny seedlings into sturdy transplants in the matter of a few weeks.

Take the Parents Pledge. (you'll never have to worry about the right answer again)

The Parents Pledge

I don't care what other parents let their children do. I am not going to let my children drink any alcoholic or malt beverage, at home or anywhere else, before they are 21. I love you too much to allow you to break the law; or to hurt yourself or somebody else. I could never forgive myself if this happened. I sign this pledge with every expectation of keeping it. Please don't ask me to set a bad example for you by breaking my pledge.

(signed)

(cut out and keep)

There will never be a better time than now for you to sign The Parents Pledge. Encourage other parents to do the same. You'll be doing them a favor, as well as doing something for your own children. The Parents Pledge was created by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board—to help parents protect their children from themselves.
